GRAVE EUROPEAN CRISIS FEARED AS 5 NAZI SHIPS BOMBARD CITY

Rare Disease Fatal To Black-White Man

AUTOPSY IS PLANNED BY SPECIALISTS

William L. Morrison, 49, American citrus worker, whose skin turned black as the result of a cancerous growth known as "melanotic sarcoma," died at St. Joseph's hospital at 6 o'clock this morning. Morrison had been ill about four months, being stricken late in January after working several hours among the smudge pots in an Riverside orange grove. Autopsy Planned. Dr. John Montanus, of Orange, county pathologist, and also pathologist for St. Joseph's hospital, will perform an autopsy some time today that will be witnessed by the Orange county medical fraternity as well as numerous out-of-city specialists. Morrison's strange case attracted world-wide interest and during his confinement in the local hospital noted surgeons and pathologists from all parts of the nation examined him. The Santa Ana doctor who has been in constant attendance at Morrison's bedside said today that he did not feel Morrison's case so much of a mystery as at first believed. In the last few days the physicians reached a pretty definite conclusion that the sickness was due to a cancerous growth known as "melanotic sarcoma."

GEN. HAYASHI'S CABINET QUILTS

TOKYO, May 31.—(UP)—The cabinet of Gen. Senjuro Hayashi recognized today as a climax of the long smoldering dispute between the political parties and the army faction. The leading parties, Minseitō and Seiyūkai, decided at a joint meeting to introduce a motion of non-confidence should the Hayashi cabinet remain in office. Because of the opposition of the political parties, Hayashi decided the position of his ministry was untenable. He called on Emperor Hirohito and then conferred with Kichiro Hirano, president of the privy council. A special cabinet meeting was summoned and the ministers proceeded to the palace with their resignations. The emperor immediately got in touch with Prince Kimmochi Saionji, last of the "genro" or elder statesmen — to consider formation of a new government.

VICTORY WON BY SONORA CATHOLICS

NOGALES, Son., Mex., May 31.—(UP)—Sonora Catholics won their "kneel down" strike today when the state department ordered keys to the long-closed church here turned over to the parish priest. The priest, the Rev. Fr. Salvador Sandoval, said the first mass in more than three years would be celebrated in the church tomorrow. The city went wild with joy as word of the federal government's orders spread. The church bells rang gaily, and crowds milled about the plaza shouting "Viva Cristo!" "Viva Cardenas!" and "Viva Yocupicio!" Catholics broke government locks on the church doors last Thursday night in a demonstration during which 5000 men and women paraded with banners demanding their church be reopened.

MORRISON'S ILLNESS FATAL

William L. Morrison, American citrus worker, whose skin turned black from a rare disease known as melanosis, passed away at St. Joseph's hospital early this morning after four months of illness. Below, on left, is Morrison before he was stricken with the rare disease, and right, how he looked three months after.

STATE TO TAKE OVER NRS SOON

The National Re-employment service, operated by the federal government during the depression years, will cease to function as a federal organization, and will pass under state control July 1, it was learned today. Charles Fallert, manager of the Orange county bureau of NRS since it was founded, is understood to be conducting arrangements for removal of the bureau from the post office building in Santa Ana to the present SRA headquarters building at Second and Broadway, Santa Ana. Having discontinued the service, the federal government will no longer house it, making removal to the other location necessary, it is said. Reports state that the re-employment service probably will occupy the ground floor of the building at Second and Broadway, with SRA offices and personnel being moved up to the second floor. Acted As Clearing House. NRS was founded by the present national administration to coordinate employment activities. It acted as re-employment clearing house, supplying men and women for jobs with SRA, WPA, PWA and other relief agencies, as well as referring them into private employment. First quarters of the bureau were in the basement of the court-house, but the increasing scope of its activities soon required its removal to the federal building.

NEW YORK BANKER SUCCEUMS ON YACHT

HONOLULU, May 31.—(UP)—The body of George F. Baker, 59, New York banker whose fortune was once estimated at a half a billion dollars, lay today on his yacht Viking, awaiting removal to the mainland. He died Sunday of peritonitis after an emergency operation at sea and a race to the island to provide him with medical care. At his bedside when he died was Mrs. Baker, who crossed the Pacific on a Pan-American Airways plane, and members of the yacht guard party who were enjoying the vacation cruise when Baker fell ill. Mrs. Baker arrived Saturday a few hours after the Viking reached port, escorted by a coast guard cutter that raced out to place a surgeon aboard the yacht 300 miles from shore. Mrs. Baker planned tentatively to return with the body next Saturday aboard the Matson liner Lurline.

POPE PIUS FORCED TO CANCEL SPEECH

VATICAN CITY, May 31.—(UP)—Pope Pius XI, on his 80th birthday, was obliged for reasons of health today to cancel an engagement to open the new papal academy of science and make a broadcast speech. A communique was issued for publication in Osservatore, Romano which said: "Although well in health but not wishing to abuse the condition which the almighty grants him, the pope believes it advisable to renounce the personal inauguration of the papal academy of sciences."

TWO ARRESTED ON STOCK CHARGES

A Long Beach man and a Tustin woman were booked at county jail Saturday on charges they violated the state corporate securities act by allegedly selling fraudulent oil stock to an Orange county woman. On warrants issued by Judge Kenneth Morrison in Santa Ana justice court, Donald D. Huddleston, 54, was arrested by Deputy Sheriff James Musick in Long Beach, where he is a real estate operator, and Mrs. Mollie Ballard, 51, of 255 East First street, Tustin, was arrested in Tustin by Musick and Deputy Grace Hall. Mrs. Ballard was released after providing $10,000 bail Saturday. Huddleston was still in jail today.

LEGISLATORS SET RECORD ON NEW BILLS

SACRAMENTO, May 31.—(UP)—California's 52nd legislature established a new record for the number of bills introduced and passed but in the opinion of veterans the session was lacking in outstanding accomplishments aside from the approval of a record-breaking expenditure program and a few measures touching upon social welfare, relief revenue bonds and tideland oil. The lawmakers officially ended their five-month grind at 4:20 a. m. Sunday, nearly 36 hours after the time set for adjournment. 4091 Bills Introduced. They introduced 4091 bills and passed 1350 of them. They approved a $138,000,000 budget for 1937-38 and in addition passed special appropriation bills totaling approximately $25,000,000. To set up the greatest expenditure program in history of the state. It was daylight before gavel descended to end the session. Weary members struggled out of the capitol and most of them went home after getting a few hours sleep. Some had to stay, however, for the grand jury investigation of bribery charges, starting here tomorrow. Oil Quiz Launched. One of the biggest developments of the session was the start of an inquiry into charges that bribery was involved in the handling of the Welsh tideland oil bill, one of the

LETTERS CLUE TO BIG PLANE

LOS ANGELES, May 31.—(UP)—Western Air Express offices here announced today receipt of advices from Salt Lake that the first tangible clue to the plane which disappeared December 15 with seven passengers aboard apparently had been discovered in letters, believed from the lost ship's mail pouches. Every indication pointed to the letters as authentic mail from the ship, officials said. It was said that Salt Lake offices of the line planned to send a scouting plane over the Wasatch mountains, where the letters were picked up, in a fresh attempt to locate the long lost airliner. It was intimated here that postal authorities had clamped down a censorship on all reports from the region where the search is centering until government agents find and take possession of the mail sacks which the plane carried. Reports from Alpine, Utah, were that two residents of the town, Will Healy and Frank Bateman, had discovered the letters. Postal inspectors and Western Air officials were to confer today. Vern Healy, son of Will Healy, said that the report of his father and Bateman finding the letters was "all a silly rumor."

SETS FAST PACE

Wilbur Shaw, dapper little Indianapolis favorite, who set a dizzy pace in the 500 mile race on the Indianapolis speedway today. He traveled 114.631 miles an hour for 250 miles.

WILBUR SHAW RACE WINNER

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 31.—UP—Wilbur Shaw, dapper little Indianapolis favorite, set a dizzy pace of 114.631 miles an hour for 250 miles today to hold the lead at the halfway mark of 500 mile race on the Indianapolis motor speedway. Heppburn Second. Ralph Heppburn, Los Angeles, driving the car which Louis Meyer won last year, was in second position. Others of the 19 leaders in order, were: Ted Horn, Los Angeles; Bill Cummings, Indianapolis; Cliff Bergere, Hollywood; Jimmy Snyder, driving relief for Herb Ardinger; Floyd Roberts, Van Nuys, Calif.; Kelly Pettito, Los Angeles, winner in 1935; and Tony Gulotta, Kansas City. Bergere was forced to quit a few minutes later, however, overcome by heat. George Barringer, Los Angeles, relieved him. Russell Snowberger, Wilmington, Del., whose Packard eight was the most completely "stock" car in the race, made a pit stop on his 33rd lap and became the first of the field to assign a relief driver.

CONVICTED WOMAN AWAITS SENTENCE

LAS VEGAS, Nev., May 31.—(UP)—Saved from Nevada's gas death house by a jury's recommendation, Mrs. Grace Nussler sat glumly in her cell today awaiting sentence Wednesday to life imprisonment. A jury in convicting Mrs. Nussler of murdering her former husband Saturday night disregarded the state's demand for the death penalty which would have made her the first woman to enter the state's lethal chamber. The jury found her guilty of first degree murder but recommended leniency. Services for Mr. Dilley will be held at the Winbiger mortuary chapel, 699 North Main street, with the Rev. Harry Evan Owens, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiating. Interment will be in Santa Ana cemetery. One of the pioneer ranchers of this district he had retired approximately 10 years ago and made his home at 121 North McClay street. His wife, Mrs. Amanda E. Dilley, preceded him in death, three years ago. He is survived by four sons, Guy and Walter Dilley, both of Santa Ana; Elmer Dilley, Sacramento and Washington, D.C.; Davis, Calif.; a daughter, Mrs. Ralph Shore, Tulare and a sister, Mrs. Hattie Custer, Sacramento.

ARRANGE SERVICES FOR JOHN T. DILLEY

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow for John T. Dilley, 81, retired rancher and resident of Santa Ana for the past 45 years who died Saturday at a local hospital. Services for Mr. Dilley will be held at the Winbiger mortuary chapel, 699 North Main street, with the Rev. Harry Evan Owens, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiating. Interment will be in Santa Ana cemetery. One of the pioneer ranchers of this district he had retired approximately 10 years ago and made his home at 121 North McClay street. His wife, Mrs. Amanda E. Dilley, preceded him in death, three years ago. He is survived by four sons, Guy and Walter Dilley, both of Santa Ana; Elmer Dilley, Sacramento and Washington, D.C.; Davis, Calif.; a daughter, Mrs. Ralph Shore, Tulare and a sister, Mrs. Hattie Custer, Sacramento.

GERMANY AND ITALY QUIT NON-INTERVENTION GROUP; SATISFACTION IS DEMANDED

LONDON, May 31.—(UP)—Germany and Italy withdrew today from the Spanish non-intervention committee and the international control scheme, threatening a grave European crisis. Germany withdrew after her ships had bombarded the Spanish port of Almeria, causing many casualties, in retaliation for the bombing of the German pocket battleship Deutschland by Loyalist planes. Italy, co-operating with Germany, withdrew until she is given satisfaction for the Loyalist bombing of the Italian merchant steamer Barletta at Palma, Mallorca, on May 24.

GERMAN SHIPS BOMBARD PORT

VALENCIA, Spain, May 31.—(UP)—Five German warships bombarded the port of Valencia today, causing many casualties, and shore batteries, in reply, were reported to have hit a German destroyer. Heavy Casualties. Casualties were estimated unofficially but reliably at 36 dead, 65 wounded and 100 missing. Women and children were among the casualties. More than 40 buildings were destroyed. "This is an act of war and we are prepared to defend ourselves," a high official of the Valencia government declared. "Germany finally has come out in the open." The cabinet was reported to have decided unanimously to demand immediate withdrawal of German and Italian ships from the international control of Spanish waters. The Spanish Febus News agency reported "several hundreds" were wounded in the bombardment. Several shells fell on the building occupied by the International Red Cross, which was destroyed. "Several scores" of houses were in ruins, the agency said, and searching parties were recovering bodies from the debris. Crushed By Debris. Most of the wounded were crushed by falling debris. WORLD RECORD SET BY L. A. MINISTER

LOS ANGELES, May 31.—(UP)—Happy to claim a new world record for continuous preaching, the Rev. Alton Lee finally called it quits today at the end of 21 hours and tumbled into bed with a sore throat. The Rev. Mr. Lee had set 60 hours as his goal after reading in his "Believe It or Not" cartoon that a Negro minister had preached 17 hours for a record. About 100 persons were in his wooden downtown tabernacle when he gave up the ghost at 8:30 a. m. Although weak from loss of sleep and exertion, he was quoted as not being completely exhausted or unable to talk. "But my throat's pretty raw," he rasped after discoursing on the Scriptures some shortly after 11 a. m. Sunday. The handsome, wavy-haired, immanable gospel preacher, 29 years old and the father of three children, took ruckus during the night and preached through a microphone while changing clothes in a backroom and eating hasty snacks.

CATHOLIC ORDER ELECTS OFFICERS

SAN JOSE, Calif., May 31.—(UP)—Mrs. Josephine Bombardier, of Long Beach, took office today as state regent of the Catholic Daughters of America. Other officers elected at the annual convention here included Mrs. Aileen O'Donnell, San Mateo, vice regent; Miss Helen Byrne, Berkeley, secretary; Miss Winifred Gaffney, San Francisco, treasurer; Mrs. Carrie Segueria, Newman, monitor, and Rt. Rev. Msgr. John J. Cullen, San Francisco, chaplain. The delegates voted to hold their 1939 convention in San Francisco. CHARGE STEEL PICKETS FIRING ON AIRPLANES. CLEVELAND, May 31.—(UP)—A spokesman for Republic Steel corporation charged today that pickets at the corporation's Warren, O., plant were firing shots at planes bearing food to non-striking workers. Steel Workers' Organizing committee officials, who denied the charges, asked Ohio Gov. Martin L. Davey to stop the corporation further from flying rations to men inside its plants.

Neither the German nor Italian delegates attended a meeting of the conference's sub-committee meeting at the foreign office at 4 p. m., so that a plenary session scheduled for 4:30 p. m. was cancelled. The cancellation was understood to have been at the request of Joachim von Ribbentrop, German ambassador. Germany was enraged by the aerial bombing of her pocket cruiser, Deutschland in the Balearic Islands on Saturday, killing 23 of the crew and injuring 53. Word from Berlin was that she felt avenged by the destructive bombardment of Almeria by five German ships, causing heavy damage and casualties. However, she sent more warships to Spanish waters and was prepared for further reprisals if there are new incidents. German ships were instructed to fire on any Loyalist planes or warships which approach them. The bombardment of Almeria was the culmination of several recent incidents which have threatened trouble. Barcelona reported that the Spanish liner Ciudad de Barcelona had been torpedoed and sunk with considerable loss of life by a submarine alleged to be Italian. Capt. Anthony Eden, foreign secretary, told the house of commons today that in an interview with the German chargé d'affaires, he asked the German government to take no action "which would render the present grave situation more serious." Eden told Clement R. Attlee, labor leader, that he had received information that the German battleship Admiral von Scheer had bombarded Almeria from 6:30 a. m. to 7 a. m. CHICAGO, May 31.—(UP)—The Steel Workers' Organizing committee today announced it would ask murder indictments against police who participated in a clash which yesterday resulted in the death of five strikers and injury to more than 100 unionists and police. Van A. Bittner, regional director of the S. W. O. C., told 1000 strikers and sympathizers at a mass meeting today that "the men who committed these murders will be treated as murderers." "We expect to present the matter to the proper authorities," he said. "We're going to have these policemen indicted for murder." Fifteen hundred strikers and sympathizers armed with clubs and brick bats and 150 police carrying riot clubs, pistols and tear gas guns, clashed in vicious hand-to-hand fighting before Republic Steel corporation gates yesterday. It was the strikers' third attempt in as many days to march on the plant, which has operated in defiance of strikers' demands. Bittner, however, warned strikers today to attempt no further march on the plant. "You'll be shot down like dogs," he said. Meanwhile, Gov. Henry Horner, aided by state and federal authorities, continued efforts to prevent new violence.

S. A. SPEAKERS IN PEACE PLEAS

Veterans and Daughters of Veterans joined with the surviving members of Sedgwick post, Grand Army of the Republic, for memorial services.

Members of the World War veterans' organizations held their memorial services at 9:30 a. m. and were guests of the program sponsored by that organization at 10:30 a. m.

Graves Flower Decked

Graves of veterans of all wars in both cemeteries had been flower decked and marked with flags long before the ceremonies were scheduled to start. Other graves in both burial grounds also had been flower decked. In keeping with the day, Legionnaires, Veterans of Foreign Wars, members of the Disabled Veterans, auxiliaries of the organizations, the drum and bugle corps of Santa Ana post of the American Legion and Boy Scouts met at the Fairview street entrance to Fairhaven cemetery.

Colors of all organizations were massed at the head of the column. The drum corps, with muffled drums, followed the massed colors. The other organizations fell in behind with the brilliant scarlet capes of members of the Santa Ana Legion auxiliary drill team making a brilliant splash of color in the procession.

To the muffled beat of drums that resembled the throbbing of scores of hearts the column passed along the driveways of Fairhaven cemetery between rows of bare heads of hundreds of people who gathered to pay their silent tribute to Santa Ana's war dead.

Form Hollow Square

At the memorial shaft marchers deployed and formed a hollow square about the shaft and the speakers' stand. George Richardson, chaplain of Santa Ana post, American Legion, gave the invocation and Blodgett spoke briefly, paying tribute to the heroic dead. Closing his address Blodgett said: "The glory of America has been preserved by the sacrifices of our honored dead—the future depends upon what we do. What that future will be is known to God alone." At the close of his talk Scouts laid a wreath at the foot of the shaft and buglers sounded "Taps."

His talk Blodgett warned against dictatorship and sinister doctrines that would endanger the Democratic form of government that is America's. He said in part: "Many years have passed since we were forced, in self defense, into the World War. Since then we have passed through years of glorious peace. We have tried to forget the weapons and sufferings of war and have cultivated the arts and sciences which advance the civilization of the world. No other nation has been so favored as America; none has so prospered."

"While we have been thus advancing, other nations have been torn with internal strife and war, and have been worried with international suspicions and jealousies.

Prepared for War

"The countries of the old world are again prepared to wage a war of destruction. The personal rights of the individual citizens of European countries have been subjugated and destroyed by the mailed fist of dictatorship—either of Fascism or Communism. Private citizens have been regimented to promote the interests of the powerful war lords—impatiently waiting for an opportunity to throw the world into armed conflict."

"Whether these dictatorships be of the masses or the classes, whether called Fascism or Communism—we, in America must realize and appreciate that today, a Democratic form of government, such as we have enjoyed for more than 150 years, is in jeopardy. The sinister doctrines of the old world are being taught and fostered in America. They are finding many blind followers and supporters among the unthinking masses within our borders—under the leadership of foreign-born agitators."

Attacked from Within
"Our Constitutional form of government is being attacked from within. The framers of our Constitution realized the danger of autocracies and dictatorships. They fought and bled to establish and maintain our system of government—to prevent the placing of all governmental power and authority in one man or political group."

"While we may be at peace with the rest of the world today this nation is facing a struggle which is more dangerous to the welfare of America than was the struggle between the north and south in the days of Lincoln. Today, industry in America is being harassed by bitter hatred between employer and employee. The labor troubles of today appear as the beginnings of an industrial strife which, if country is destined to lead this civil war similar to the storm now taking place in Europe. A civil war in which brother will be aligned against brother, neighbor against neighbor, and no man, woman or child will be safe from its ravages."

"This strife and trouble is not the result of spontaneous discontent of the working people, but it is the result of organized agitators who seek to destroy the government given us by our fathers and to substitute in its place a dictatorship of the Proletariat or of Fascism."

"I sincerely trust that this will never come to pass. I hope that I am wrong. But I can only be wrong if the great, substantial, reliable body of the American public awakens and arouses itself to the present dangers."

Peace Is Urged

Speaking at the G. A. R. Memorial service, the Rev. O. Scott McFarland, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Santa Ana, urged his listeners to open their hearts to the will to peace.

In his talk, the Rev. Mr. McFarland recited the history of Memorial day and stressed the fact that observance of this day has done more to heal the war wounds of both the North and South than any other thing.

He said that the greatest Memorial day address was delivered by Abraham Lincoln when he dedicated the cemetery at Gettysburg where one of the bitterest battles of the Civil war took place.

Concluding, he called upon his listeners to dedicate themselves to the unfinished task of achieving a greater democracy with justice and equality for all people and all classes; greater friendship and understanding and peace. He asked that his listeners carry out the spoken wish of U. S. Grant when he said "Let us have peace."

The ceremony at the G. A. R. monument opened with the community singing of "America" and a salute to the flag. The invocation was given by the Rev. Mr. McFarland and was followed by a song by the Daughters of Union Veterans.

W. I. Davis, member of the Sons of Union Veterans, read General Order No. 11, issued 68 years ago by Gen. John A. Logan, setting aside Memorial day. The American Legion drum corps, commanded by H. R. Carnahan, paid tribute and was followed by another song by the Daughters of Union Veterans. Mrs. J. H. Brown read Lincoln's Gettysburg Address and was followed by the Rev. Mr. McFarland, who gave the principal address.

The firing squad from Calumet camp, United Spanish War Veterans fired a salute to the dead and buglers from the Legion sounded "Taps."

CROWDS FLOCK TO BEACH CITY

given, with Bud Higgins, chief life guard, in charge.

Fishing boats leave the pier each morning at 7 o'clock. Fishing has been good from the pier, it is stated, and some good catches of barracuda, halibut, yellow fin, white fin and corbina are reported. Deep sea fishing is said to be fair. A barge will be out this week with motor boats to and from it on an hourly schedule.

The first formal meeting of the Tourists Trailer convention is scheduled for Scott's theater, Fifth and Walnut streets, Tuesday at 2 p. m. with addresses of welcome by Mayor Willis H. Warner of the city of Huntington Beach and M. M. McCallen, president of the chamber of commerce. The response will be made by the vice-president of the Automobile Tourists' association, Lieut. Edwin Murphy.

The opening of the Merchants' exposition and Outing show, Tuesday at 7 p. m. will take place at the Exposition grounds, Sixth and Orange streets. A concert will be presented by the Orange County Symphony band, with Leon Eckles as director.

At 8 p. m. will be the coronation of the first Trailrite queen, who will be selected Tuesday and who will be provided with a military escort, crown bearers, flower girls, maids of honor and a queen's court. Arrangements for events are being carried out under the direction of William B. Leggo, secretary of the chamber of commerce. The candidate for queen must be single and must arrive in the city in a trailer. Registrations for queen are to be made by tonight.

Mays Relief Driver
Mays, pace-setter for a long time last year, got back into the race as relief driver for Shorty Canton.

By the time leaders had turned 110 miles, Chet Miller, Detroit, was forced out.

Tires suffered from the terrific beating they were taking on the sun-baked bricks.

The strain was telling on the drivers. Fred Frame, Los Angeles, winner of the 1932 race, went in to relieve Babe Stapp.

Harry MacQuinn, Indianapolis, was the fourth to be officially declared out of the race. His car went out on the 47th lap with a frozen valve.

Jimmy Snyder, who set the pace for 27 laps before his own car was forced out, went in as relief driver for Herb Ardinger.

At 225 miles, Shaw established a new track record for the distance at 114.443 miles an hour. The previous record was 110.953 set by Meyer last year.

Hebupung clung to second place, Ted Horn to third and Bill Cummings to fourth.

33 Cars Start
Thirty-three sleek little racing cars, the fastest in the world, shot across the starting line of Indianapolis motor speedway at 10:04 a. m. (C.S.T.) today, starting the grind for about $100,000 prize money.

The greatest racing crowd in history, more than 170,000, sweltered under blazing sun.

Dick Merrill, transatlantic flier, waved a green flag and the race was on.

Herb Ardinger, Glassport, Pa., who had been lined up on the outside rail of the first row, leaped into the lead for the first lap. Close on his heels was Wilbur Shaw.

FISH, OR STORY!

Judge Kenneth E. Morrison of Santa Ana justice court, with his son, Kenneth, were expected home tonight with a sack or two full of trout, or possibly only a fish story, after a week-end and holiday of practicing the piscatorial art along the Owens river, in the Bishop district.

RECORD IS SET BY LEGISLATORS

measures passed during the closing days by the legislature.

This led directly to a fistfight in the corridor outside the assembly early Sunday when District Attorney Otis D. Babcock, objecting to being called a "first class hell," slapped Assemblyman Charles A. Hunt, Los Angeles, smallest and most fiery member of the legislature, who was one of those subpoenaed to appear before the grand jury. Bystanders stopped the fight before either was hurt.

Accomplishments of the session included passage of the following measures:

The $438,000,000 1937-38 budget bill for state expenditures.

Bond Bill Approved
The garrison revenue bond bill, authorizing communities to acquire or construct utility services by issuing bonds provided the plan is approved by a majority of the voters.

Sen. Culbert L. Olson's bill to allow direct tideland oil drilling at Huntington Beach, contracts to be let on a competitive bidding basis requiring a minimum royalty of 30 per cent from wells producing 200 or more barrels daily. Also the Welsh and O'Donnell bills on the same subject.

A bill to permit grand jury hearings to be opened to the public if, in the opinion of officials, open hearings would be in the public interest.

Welfare Board Created
Consolidation of relief with the state department of social welfare and creation of a welfare board which in turn would name an administrator to direct the handling of relief, old age pensions, child welfare, blind aid and other functions of the department.

A new liquor control act providing for closing hours between 2 and 6 a. m. daily, giving local authorities more authority in passing on license applications, placing enforcement of the act on the shoulders of local police and lowering the state tax on dry wines from two to one cent a gallon.

Extension of the mortgage moratorium for another two years. Substituting lethal gas for hanging in the two state prisons.

Provide Exposition Funds
Appropriating $5,000,000 to the Golden Gate international exposition in 1939 and $1,500,000 for the Los Angeles exposition in 1940.

Lowering diesel oil three cents a gallon.

Eliminating the names of presidential electors from the ballot.

Ratification of an agreement under which the Standard Oil company will pay the state $505,000 for oil and gas removed from the state owned Huntington Beach tideland oil pool.

Authorizing the appointment of 10 assembly interim committees to spend no more than $25,000.

Appropriating $1,455,888 to the University of California in addition to the regular budgetary allowance.

Prohibiting employment of female bartenders.

Making the president of the board of directors of the Veterans' home at Yountville a member of the state athletic commission.

The Hornblower bills to liberalize old age pensions and state aid to the blind. They provide that eligible persons 65 or older may receive $35 a month and be allowed a $15 side income; that blind persons may obtain $50 a month aid and be permitted a side income of $400 a year.

Appropriating $2,000,000 for construction of a new prison in Southern California at Chico, and $250,000 for a state prison farm somewhere between San Quentin and Folsom.

Increasing salaries of equalization board members from $4000 to $5000.

Removing restrictions against sale of liquor to Indians.

Prohibiting the sale, possession or use of tear gas by anyone except regular peace officers, except by permission of the state bureau of criminal identification.

Increasing the personnel of the state athletic commission from three to five members.

Creating a state greyhound racing board, legalizing dog racing and pari-mutuel betting on the sport.

Earmarking $2,500,000 of the relief fund for establishment of farm rehabilitation projects for indigent small tracts and given necessary families who would be placed on equipment to make them self-supporting.

Extending the unemployment insurance act to include employers of four or more persons, instead of eight or more as provided in the present law.

Continuation of state "in lieu" tax on automobiles for two years.

Authorizing communities to issue revenue bonds to finance slum clearance programs.

Creation of a state bureau to control venereal diseases.

Appropriating $2,500,000 to finance a drive to eradicate bovine tuberculosis.

Appropriating $6,961,550 to finance improvements at state institutions and $7,205,250 for a general capital construction program.

Retiring judges at 70.

Preventing sale of goods manufactured with child labor.

Requiring that 30 per cent of workers on state public works/projects be 45 or older.

Providing $35 monthly to needy persons 18 or older who are permanently disabled.

Extending the $1,000 veterans' exemption to the state automobile "in lieu" tax as well as to real property taxes.

Permitting deduction of 10 per cent of earned income from the state income tax.

Increasing fish and game commission membership from three to five.

Permitting state colleges to install military training courses in which students may enroll of the desire. (A compulsory ROTC provision was defeated in the closing hours.)

HORSE SHOW ENTRY

El Capitan, one of Southern California's outstanding palomina stallions, will be shown here June 5 in the horse show to be held in Santa Ana Municipal Bowl, under sponsorship of the Santa Ana unit, Assistance League of Southern California.

El Capitan, who will be for honors with his son, Val, another beautiful palomina, is ridden by George Boyd, member of the El Rodeo Riding Club, who rode him in the parade that marked the opening of Golden Gate bridge in San Francisco.

Elete Of Horsedom To Be Featured In Horse Show Here Saturday

Ranging from purebred Belgian draft stock to the most highly trained and gaited saddle horse, the elite of Horsedom will be on display here next Saturday at the Horse show being sponsored at Santa Ana Municipal Bowl by the Santa Ana unit, Assistance League of Southern California.

Orange county horses that are better known in the show rings of other counties than they are in this county, according to Mrs. Howard Timmons, general chairman in charge of arrangements, will be shown. They will be in competition with other show winners from Southern California.

One of the outstanding features of the afternoon and evening performances and the parade will be a showing of Belgian draft horses from the stables of E. G. Stinson, Orange. These horses will be driven in the parade that opens the show and will be exhibited at both performances. They will be driven by E. G. Stinson Jr. Stinson has been showing these horses for the past 12 years and won every hitch in the last eight fairs in which the animals have been entered.

Stinson said today, "I am glad to enter my horses in this show and give exhibitions with them because I believe that Orange county could, and should be interested in horse shows."

Horses from the Irvine ranch that will be in the downtown parade and shown at the Bowl will include Polly, the beautiful palomina that has won ribbons and trophies in practically every show participated in. Brown Jug and Nona also will be shown.

Harry Marrel of Garden Grove will show his palomina stallion Val, a direct descendant of Barb, of Mexico and sired by El Capitan. Other Marrel entries will include Flash, an English saddle horse, and Mayfair, a polo pony.

Clyde Deardorff has entered La Reina, one of Southern California's outstanding western saddle horses. She will be ridden in the show by Gene Thomas. Winner of 12 trophies and 50 ribbons La Reina has won the blue ribbon in every Orange county Armistice day parade since 1932. In a Bakersfield show she won second place against a field of 2700 horses and, later at San Clemente, won first place over a first prize winner at Bakersfield.

The El Rodeo Riding club entry that created such a sensation in the Golden Gate Bridge opening parade in San Francisco will ride, in a body in the grand entry parade at the Bowl. This group will, as in the San Francisco parade, use their sterling silver mounted saddles and bridles.

DEATH NOTICES

A WORD OF COMFORT

Amid your heartache it is hard to care whether or not you make anything of your life; your aspirations seem far away. Rest awhile, but rest expectantly. You have the need and the right to anticipate that God will quietly but surely revitalize and transform your broken life, if you give Him the chance.

Although at the moment the prospect is not alluring, look forward with the determination to do your best and with sure confidence that strength sufficient for each today will be yours as the days arise.

NEA WRITER DRAFTED FOR FILM ROLE

An "Exclusive" idea of how Paul Harrison, NEA Writer, broke into the moving pictures is presented in this photo. Harrison identifies himself as the guy in the light suit "with his nose in Frances Farmer's hair. Miss Farmer, incidentally, has the feminine lead. Harrison dropped in during the filming of "Exclusive," a newspaper story, and the director drafted him for a brief speaking role to provide an authentic "city room" touch. This setting shows a group around the city editor's desk.

FINAL TRIBUTE PAID TO YOUTH KILLED IN CAR

As a final tribute to Joe Sanford, Jr., 20-year-old Orange high school senior, who was fatally injured Wednesday night in an automobile accident which occurred on the El Modena grade, funeral services were held Saturday afternoon in the First Christian church of Orange in charge of arrangements.

The church was filled to capacity when the Rev. William R. Holder, pastor of the church, conducted the impressive services. The esteem in which the local boy was held was shown in the many floral offerings which filled the altar space of the church.

Mrs. Florence Hager and Mrs. Jean Des Larzes offered two vocal duets, "Nearer My God To Thee" and "Sometime We'll Understand." Donald Krueger, one of the high school students, sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere." Otis Ingle accompanied the vocalists at the organ.

Pallbearers were schoolmates of the Orange boy. They were: Messrs. Bob Baier, Tom Hart, Billy Caster, Harold Riffle, Hugh A. Thompson and Johnny Harms. Members of the Senior class, of which the deceased was a member, attended in a body.

Interment was in Fairhaven cemetery. Survivors of the Orange youth are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Sanford, a brother, Alfred, of Los Angeles, and two sisters, the Misses Marie and Velva Sanford.

"CHRISTIAN PATRIOTISM" IS MEMORIAL DAY SERMON TOPIC

OLIVE, May 31.—In keeping with Memorial day, the Rev. E. H. Kreidt at St. Paul's Lutheran church in Olive spoke Sunday morning on "Christian Patriotism," basing his words of Jer. 29:7: "Seek the peace of the city." He said in part:

We cannot think of Memorial Day without thinking of war. The thinned ranks of the Blue and Gray of the Civil War, the Spanish-American War Veterans, the khaki-clad battalions of the World War, marching with waving flags to the strains of life and drum, followed by detachments of the Red Cross, the silent graves of those that gave their life: It all speaks of war, wars that have been, and war that may yet be. We hate war, yet we are intimately concerned with war. Seventy-two cents of every federal tax dollar goes for past and future war. See those boys! They are our boys! War may shatter their minds, maim their bodies, take their life. We are personally concerned with war. What is the Christian attitude toward war? Is it sinful to fight for our country of must a disciple of Jesus be a pacifist? Those are vital questions. We hate war with its brutal destruction or morality, property and life. We can see nothing glorious in war. Yet the occasion may arise when we as loyal, obedient citizens will engage in war. It is our Christian duty to wage war in defense of our country. Wars of conquest are wrong, and the Christian should refuse to take part in them. But if he cannot clearly prove the war to be uncommanded of God, "Obey them that have the rule over you." Christianity has no place for pacifism which declares all war to be wrong, and those followers declare that they will not take part in any war. As Christian citizens we shall seek the peace of our country, but if need be we shall also fight in the defense of our country. God grant that this service be not demanded of us and of our children.

Observe Anniversary
This year we are celebrating the 150th anniversary of the Constitution of these United States. That document of which Gladstone said, "It is, so far as I can see, the most wonderful work struck off in a given time by the brain and purpose of man." Its purpose was to define and limit the power of the federal government and also of the several states in such a manner, that the liberties of individual and of minority groups might be safeguarded against the majority. Therefore the First Amendment declares, "Congress shall make no law respecting the establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of their grievances." In this fundamental law of the land is guaranteed to us religious liberty and the right to express our views. That these precious liberties might not be taken from the people the power of government was wisely divided between the congress, the president and the supreme court. Congress makes the laws, the court declares their constitutionality and the president executes them. Patriotism demands that we guard and keep his excellent arrangement. Our courts must remain free and uncontrolled either by congress or the president. As Christian Americans we owe it to ourselves and to our country to think on these things, to study the trends and policies in our political life. We must set the welfare of the whole people above the political parties and the advantages of certain groups. We must be on our guard, lest for present, personal advantage we lose that priceless boon of civil and religious liberty.

That there is sympathy with Communism in high governmental position cannot be denied. Like the roots of a cancer Communism is boring into the organizations of our land with the avowed purpose of destroying our constitutional government and abolishing civil and religious liberty. Every American patriot, every Christian patriot, needs to study this sinister movement and to think clearly on the political issues of the day. We are living in a time of social unrest; old values are being swept aside for that which is new. For present gain and power the final consequences are being lost sight of. Patriotism which rests on the fundamentals of constitutional liberty and restraint must assert itself. This is the crying need of the hour.

So let us today honor our soldier-dead by dedicating ourselves to the great American ideal of constitutional government, serving our country in willing obedience, guarding our constitutional guarantees of civil and religious liberty, resisting with all our might the destructive forces of Communism, and turning to God with the constant, fervent prayer:

God, Who art ever high,
Guarding with watchful eye,
To Thee aloud we cry:
God save our State.

Canterbury Growth
That there is sympathy with Communism in high governmental position cannot be denied. Like the roots of a cancer Communism is boring into the organizations of our land with the avowed purpose of destroying our constitutional government and abolishing civil and religious liberty. Every American patriot, every Christian patriot, needs to study this sinister movement and to think clearly on the political issues of the day. Patriotism which rests on the fundamentals of constitutional liberty and restraint must assert itself. This is the crying need of the hour.

Free Speech
The constitution guarantees to its citizens free speech. That includes the right to criticize our government, its policies and conduct of office. Let us make use of this right, but always within the bounds of respect and honor which

FALL OF EMPIRE TOLD HERE IN ANDERSON TALK

One of the most complex and interesting prophecies of Scripture, the fall of the Ottoman empire, and its fulfillment to the day, were discussed by the London evangelist, R. A. Anderson, at the Santa Ana Bible tabernacle last night.

The evangelist discussed the act of Dr. Josiah Litch, of Philadelphia, in publishing a tract two years before the prophecy was fulfilled, boldly proclaiming it would be fulfilled August 31, 1914. He used the year-day Biblical method of reckoning time, and showed that the prophecy extended 391 years and 15 days.

Fearless Champion
Infidel clubs and leaders throughout the world challenged the prediction of Dr. Litch and ridiculed his audacity. But he, said the evangelist, became a fearless champion of Christ and declared the future would vindicate the veracity of God's word.

"It did," said the evangelist, "When the news was flashed to the world August 11, 1914, that the sultan's empire had fallen, the unbelieving world was forced to take notice."

Illustrated Sermon
Within a few months Dr. Litch received letters from more than a thousand prominent infidels, stating they had given up the fight against the Bible and had accepted it as God's revelation to man.

The evangelist last night graphically illustrated his lecture with special life-like diagrams. His brother, C. R. Anderson, led congregational singing. A special musical feature was the choral selection, "Gloria" (Mozart), sung by the tabernacle choir with George Freeman directing.

The first successful synchronization of propeller and machine gun firing was made by Anthony Fokker in 1915.

YORBA VOTERS GET NEW RULE FOR ELECTION

Voters of Yorba school district and that portion of Richfield school district which was transferred with the Yorba area from Placentia unified school district to Yorba Linda school district some months ago, must vote in the Placentia district at next Friday's school election, it was announced today by County Clerk J. M. Backs.

Backs quoted a legal opinion received from Robert W. Harrison, counsel for the California association of county clerks, and also chief deputy attorney general.

Tells of Tax
According to Harrison's opinion the transfer of the school territory from one district to another does not take effect until July 1, except for purposes of assessment and taxation of property.

The Yorba and Richfield territory transferred to Yorba Linda district a few months ago will be assessed and taxed in the Yorba Linda district this year, because the transfer had been made before March 1, the assessment date. But for voting purposes, the transfer is not effective until July 1.

The Yorba and Richfield voters therefore must cast their votes in the Placentia district this year. That means also in the Valencia high school district, rather than the Fullerton high school district, in which Yorba Linda is located.

Local Officer Returns After State Conclave

Russell R. Lutes, assistant superintendent of the sheriff's identification bureau, has returned from Santa Cruz where he attended the annual convention of the International Association for Identification, California division, May 26 to 28.

Prominent criminologists, psychiatrists and prosecutors of the state addressed the convention on "trade" subjects. Identification of blood, uses of the ultra-violet light, cooperation between small and large police departments, preparing and presenting evidence in court, practical use of mugshot identification, circularizing for criminals, finger-printing the public, personal identification through the use of sunshot, degeneracy as the forerunner of crime and other subjects were discussed.

Dr. Joseph Catton, prominent San Francisco psychiatrist, speaking on the subject, "Why Did I Kill Him?" discussed the answers of some 50 slayers who said, "I was insane."

Lutes was the only Orange county delegate attending the convention.

So We... 100,000 of Us... Just Walked Right Across the Golden Gate

here is part of a throng who paid a nickel apiece to walk about five miles—and what's more liked it. For the day preceding the formal opening of the massive Golden Gate Bridge was given to pedestrians. And hikers were lined up both on the San Francisco and Redwood Empire shores, waiting for the barriers to open so they could walk. Photo taken near the Marin tower.

We, THE PEOPLE by JAY FRANKLIN

SUGAR VS. CONSCIENCE

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Jim Farley is reported to have remarked that Senator O'Mahoney's celebration of conscience regarding reform of the judiciary might not be so troublesome when he wanted a new sugar bill. Mr. Farley said nothing about the administration's conscience, yet if Mr. Roosevelt trades judicial reform for the sort of bill the sugar lobby demands, he will be committing deliberate economic crime against the American people and the more abundant life which the New Deal promised to give them.

America's sweet tooth is one of the biggest headaches of the Roosevelt administration.

The facts are so simple that one can only recall Sir Wilmot Lewis' observation that the more inefficient an American business is, the louder is the noise it makes at Washington and the greater the help it receives from the government.

Except for the cane-growing regions in Florida and Louisiana, sugar is not an economic crop in the continental United States. Fortunately for us, we have at our door-step the greatest sugar-producing area in the world: Cuba and the West Indies. In addition to which we have plantations in Hawaii and the Philippines and, of course, Puerto Rico. One would expect us to welcome the bounties of nature in the Western Hemisphere and to accept our own political geography satisfying the tremendous demand for sugar on the part of 130,000,000 Americans.

Even with the aid of tariff subsidies and quotas on sugar imports, American growers produce only 60 per cent of our annual consumption of about six and a half million tons of raw sugar. There are only about 70,000 farms in this country which produce cane or beet sugar, and the American refining industry employs a bare 14,000 workers.

Worse still, to grow sugar-beets requires extensive use of child labor. Oh sure! "they" have "abolished" child labor in the western beet fields. It is only a coincidence that beet pickers cannot be married and have children, and that the public schools close down as soon as beet picking time comes around. Picking beets is hard, dusty work. Pay is low. Migratory Mexicans are preferred—no nonsense about American standards of living, strikes or civil liberties is likely when the threat of deportation as an "undesirable alien" hangs heavy over your head.

The Department of Agriculture reckons the annual value of our domestic sugar crop—cane and beet—at about $75,000,000. Secretary Wallace reckons the additional cost of tariff protection and quotas to the American consumers of sugar at $350,000,000 a year. In other words, we are being gouged at the rate of nearly $3 per year for every man, woman and child in America. In order that little children may crawl for long hours under the hot sun, and that what used to be called the sugar trust may coin golden profits out of their misery and our necessities.

The beet sugar producers, the cane sugar producers and the American refiners have gotten together in a smooth-working lobby which swings a powerful vote in congress. What does this lobby have that in 1934 the U. S. Tariff Commission made an exhaustive investigation of the claims of refiners for public protection and reported to President Roosevelt that the facts did not warrant giving them protection against even foreign competition? What does this lobby care that in 1936 the U. S. supreme court, without a single dissenting vote, found that the cane refiners, operating under the name of The Sugar Institute (since renamed the U. S. Cane Sugar Refiners' Association) had actually devised 40 different ways of restraining trade in violation of the anti-trust laws?

They have gone ahead and have entrusted new sugar legislation to a select sub-committee, under the chairmanship of Rep. Fred Cummings, of Colorado, former president of the National Beet Growers association. This sub-committee has made hay of the New Deal plans to liberalize the present sugar laws.

This law, the Jones-Costigan Act of 1934, expires on December 31 of this year. It established foreign quotas of less than three million tons of raw sugar and then, with unheard-of high-handedness, limited the right of the refiners in American possessions to refine their own quotas for the American continental market. This is the law which, in combination with an admittedly exorbitant tariff, is costing the American public a $550,000,000 subsidy for a $75,000,000 crop.

Will Mr. Roosevelt use the December 31 deadline as a club to force western senators to vote for his reform bill? There is already a powerful group in the administration which is prepared to resist such a trade to the last ditch.

MRS. HARDY TO BE BURIED TOMORROW

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow for Mrs. Catherine Hardy, 91, who died yesterday at her home, 512 East Second street. Services will be held at the Brown and Wagner chapel with the Rev. W. S. Buchanan, pastor of the First Christian church, officiating.

Mrs. Hardy, who had lived in Santa Ana for a quarter century, is survived by two sons, Elmer E. and Ernest F. Hardy, both of Santa Ana; one daughter, Mrs. Clemma Harshman, Quincy, Ill.; a grandson, Asahel Hardy and two great-grandchildren, Richard Kenneth Hardy and Anita Mae Hardy, all of Santa Ana.

DIXIE DUGAN

IT SEEMS TO ME By Heywood Brown

If I were a crow and could fly in the straight line erroneously attributed to that bird New York City would be only about 30 miles from the farm. And yet when I get into town the people and the publications seem to say such curious things.

The first paper I got after stepping off the train at Grand Central recommended a Mr. Griffin for Mayor on the ground that he believes in collecting the war debts from foreign nations. To be sure, that is a somewhat more constructive attitude than Mayor Thompson's famous offer to punch King George V on the snout if he dared to invade the Loop, and yet I wonder just how Mr. Griffin purposes to do it. Possibly he intends to send a squad of police and seize the chorus of the French casino and hold the girls as hostages until the last franc has been paid. Or, again, it may be that he will wait until the World's Fair, take a commandeer all the chianti that flows in the Italian village.

In fact, I am even more puzzled when Senators, who have rather more to do with European affairs than the Mayor of New York, arise to thunder the demand that Europe must pay. Hastily I add that I am not defending the action of foreign powers who are in default. I think it would be very nice if they would pay. I haven't any objection to their being wheedled or urged to do so, but when I hear that America must collect each last penny I am a little terrified as to whether the intent is to send over an expeditionary force to act as collectors.

I read of "A Raid" Again it startles me to read in another editorial in still another paper that "the raid" of John L. Lewis' forces upon Mr. Ford's plant at River Rouge has been gallantly repulsed. This interpretation of the fracas in Dearborn is still more puzzling, since the same paper which carried the editorial also printed a picture in which half a dozen members of the Ford forces were jumping up and down on a prostrate foe. Moreover, the implement bulging out of the pockets of one of the defenders seemed most palpably to be a pair of handcuffs.

In less serious vein there is the bustling controversy about the National Indian Assn. and the resignation of Mrs. Roosevelt. This I understand, is part of a dispute between a lady who lives in Irvington Ave., Brooklyn, and some Apaches in Arizona. It seems that the Apaches (and I wouldn't be sure it wasn't the Navajos) put on tribal dances which Mrs. Heingke regards as improper. There were also some anti-freeze mixture out of the automobiles, but I doubt that this should fairly be counted as an old tribal custom.

Peace—It's Wonderful

Possibly, like most country folk, I am too much of a compromiser. I think that Mrs. Heingke has every right to demand painted Piutes should not invade her backyard even to dance the more formal measures of the polka. But how can she really become exercised about tribal dances west of the Mississippi? After all, what if they do kick up their heels? You're only an Indian once.

I think that union organizers should quit attacking Ford employees by running their own eyes into the fists of the henchmen of the Dearborn pacifist, and I hold that no Mayor of New York should attempt to make Commissioner Valentine responsible for the collection of the war debt. It would take too many men off fixed posts and tie up Fifth avenue traffic.

Exclusive of the District of Columbia, the state of Delaware has the second least number of miles of railways within its confines, 325. Rhode Island has only 205 miles, the District of Columbia 38.

SCHOOL BOARD PLANS FOR BUS SERVICE

EL MODENA, MAY 31—The school board of this district has called a public meeting in order to determine general opinion and to discuss the cost and advisability of establishing bus service for the pupils of the El Modena school.

The meeting will be held in the Roosevelt auditorium, Tuesday evening, June 1 at 7:30 o'clock. All residents of this district are invited to be present and express their viewpoint on this matter.

ORANGE, May 31.—Complimenting Miss Virginia Humphreys, whose marriage to Eldon Padlock of El Modena will take place the latter part of June, Miss Dorothy Alma Gray, cousin of the groom-to-be, and Mrs. Fred Mahoney were co-hostesses at a miscellaneous shower Saturday evening in the home of Mrs. Mary Lentz, of Park street, El Modena. Mrs. Lentz is a grandmother of Miss Humphreys' fiancé.

A color scheme of pink and white was used in floral decorations in the home. The evening hours were spent playing several games and listening to an appropriate program of readings, songs and musical numbers. The program was as follows: a reading, "The House by the Side of the Road" given by Mrs. Pearl Padlock; a vocal solo, "Will You Remember," by Miss Donella Dollard; a vocal solo, "If God Left Only You" by Miss Audrey Hancock; and a piano solo, "Romance" by Miss Frances Nuckolls. In conclusion, Miss Donella Dollard read an original poem she had written especially for the occasion.

The honored guest was presented with a huge May basket filled with many gifts for the new home soon to be established.

Refreshments of ice cream, cake and fruit punch were served to the following: Mesdames Florence Humphreys, mother of the honoree, Elwood Padlock, Arthur Barnett, Lewis Smith, Alvin Marshburn, Douglas Marshburn, Ritchey Barnett, William Krueger, Joseph Hancock, George Slater, Ella Hayden, James Nuckolls, George Bartley, Doris Gray, Ray Schaffert, George Dollard, Carl Conway, Jay Stone, and the Mesdames Esther Humphreys, Barbara Baker, Doroth Krueger, Audrey Hancock, Virginia Slater, Frances Nuckolls, Donella Dollard and Nettie Jewel Stone.

ORANGE, May 31.—The regular sewing meeting of the McPherson Thimble Club was held Friday at the North Prospect street home of Mrs. C. L. MacFarland. Her home was decorated with many colored garden flowers.

After the afternoon of sewing and chatting had passed, the hostess served a dessert course to the following members: Mesdames Leon Des Larzes, J. M. Brubaker, M. E. White, Harold Long, Henry Meier, Paul West, Mary Meier, J. F. Stone, L. Chris, Fred Volberding, Guy Field and a special guest, Mrs. A. Olsen.

ORANGE, May 31.—Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock Joy Hershey Elder presented three of the younger members of her piano class in a recital at her studio at 247 North Cleveland street, Orange. She was assisted by the young artist, John Hart Stout, violinist. Following the program, Mrs. Elder, assisted by Mrs. Perkins, Carolyn Hager and Jessie Stout, served punch and wafers to the guests.

The three young pianists were Carolina Luna, Allen Marshburn, and Carolyn Hager. They presented solo numbers as well as several duets. Each was assisted in a duet by Mrs. Elder. The guest violinist played four numbers at the end of the program.

ORANGE, May 31.—Orange Grove Lodge No. 243, F. and A. M. will hold a stated meeting tomorrow at 8:00 p. m. Dinner will be served by Eastern Star ladies. Following dinner, two talking motion pictures will be shown. One of them is entitled, "Flying with the Clipper to Manila." All sojourning brethren are invited to be present.

ORANGE, May 31.—A dancing party was held by Wayne Smith Friday evening at his home in El Modena, with the following young people as guests: Misses Helen Haines, Helen Talbert, Stella Crist, Helen Allison, Mabel Willis, Dorothy Wagoner, Katherine Welsh; Bob Clifford, Bob Bates, Bill Field, David Welsh, David Dozier, Tom Powell and Ensley Wood. The host served ice-cream and cookies, and several games provided additional entertainment.

ORANGE, May 31.—Foothill Home Department members will meet tomorrow at 10 a. m. at the Villa Park social hall. Luncheon will be served at noon. The project for the day will be repairing of spring cushions. Members are asked to bring their own supplies for the work. Chairman for the day will be Mrs. H. H. Gardner.

WEED CONTROL PROVIDED IN STATE MEASURE

Formation of districts to finance control of weeds is authorized by an emergency act of the legislature, signed by Governor F. F. Merriam May 11, it was announced today by Deputy Agricultural Commissioner E. Johnson.

The new law, an amendment to the act of 1935 providing for pest abatement districts, went into effect immediately upon signing.

Under this new statute, said Johnson, a pest abatement district may be formed on petition of 10 per cent of the voters in the district.

Other specifications

A district, when formed, has the power to take all necessary steps for extermination of certain pests, which may include "any plant, animal, insect, fish or other matter or material under human control, which is offensive to the senses or interferes with the comfortable enjoyment of life."

Trustees of the district may acquire property and make contracts to indemnify or compensate owners for injury or damage caused by exercising the powers conferred. Affairs of the district are financed by taxation.

In passing the amendment as an emergency measure, the legislature declared that "Many rivers and streams whose sources originate in mountainous areas are carrying to and depositing upon the rich and fertile lowlands of the state, seeds which are germinating and growing rapidly into plants which are detrimental to agricultural and grazing industries of this state."

JIMMIE FIDLER IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, May 31.—Memoirs that bless and burn: When Ramon Novarro said, with utter amazement in his voice: "Last year they paid me $1,000 a week! Now they don't want me at any price!" When waiters at the old Vernon club fought to serve Roscoe Arbuckle, who always left $20 tips. When I escorted Sue Carol to a premiere the night after her secret marriage to Nick Stuart (I was a decoy to fool reporters). When heads of six studios told Walt Disney, then trying to peddle Mickey Mouse, "The public won't accept a rat as a hero."

When Gloria Swanson, delighted with a young man's suggestion that she title her picture "What a Widow," sent him a Rolls Royce (the young man was Leslie Howard). When Carole Lombard swapped eight silver loving cups (dance trophies) for an evening gown to wear as a dress extra.

When Boris Karloff, then a truck driver, gave a lift to a hitch-hiking extra named Walter Brennan. When the Marx Brothers ganged on producer B. P. Schulberg, and removed the gentleman's trousers.

When Marie Dressler, ignored by the movies, begged for a small part in a local stage show in order to eat (she was "discovered" in that part). When Robert Taylor in his first interview said, "Give me $200 a week and I'll be satisfied."

When Tully Marshall secretly replaced Lionel Barrymore in a local play while Lionel was ill, and it was three days before a drama critic spotted the hoax. When old-time cameramen, remembering William S. Hart's former hospitality, photographed him with empty cameras rather than embarrass him by not shooting at all.

It was cute the other day, when a popular child actress from Mexico City visited the Shirley Temple set. The children had no knowledge of each other's language, so they could not converse. Came time for the visitor to depart, and Shirley, as she shook her guest's hand, sprang her surprise (her one Mexican word): "Adios," she said proudly. At which the other child lifted her chin and answered (probably her one English word): "Hello!"

Now that she is in the profession, Katharine De Mille says she likes movie acting, but there was a time when she wanted any career other than pictures. "I became an actress because I couldn't help myself," Katharine told me one day. "At school I had to take part in every class play, because I was the daughter of Cecil B. De Mille. I decided I'd have to go through life doing the same thing—so why not get money for it?"

I think it interesting that the late Will Rogers still vies with current stars in the amount of fan mail received. Every week, several hundred requests come for his photographs. Much of this mail is from foreign countries, where Rogers' pictures are now being shown. The rest comes from American admirers who appeal to the studio for pictures of their forgotten favorite.

MRS. D. A. BENTON IS HOSTESS TO KING'S DAUGHTERS

GARDEN GROVE, May 31.—When members of the Kings Daughters Sunday school class were entertained on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. D. A. Benton, the meeting opened with Dr. W. Clouse, retired missionary, leading the devotions on the topic, "God."

Mrs. Benton and her sister, Mrs. Clouse, played guitar and accordion selections. A reading, "The Changed Cross," was given by Mrs. Mary Tolkein. The time was spent sewing on quilt blocks.

At the close of the afternoon the hostess served refreshments of fruit salad, cake and coffee to the following: Mrs. Walter Staley, Mrs. Harold Staley and baby, of Laguna Beach; Mrs. Julia Belote, Buena Park; Mrs. Frank Stanlake, Mrs. Elliott, Mrs. Susan Cardwell, guests; Dr. and Mrs. W. Clouse, Mrs. P. M. German, Mrs. William Lehnardt, Mrs. Lina Burns, Mrs. Margaret Beardsley, Mrs. G. Hedstrom, Mrs. Conrad Certy, Mrs. C. K. Lee, Mrs. Fannie Garr, Mrs. Hattie Clark, Mrs. Mark Tolkein and Mrs. N. V. Frink.

Townsend Topics

By W. F. ROCKWELL

If the president, cabinet, senators, representatives, supreme court and all officers in the entire nation from "top to bottom" would think, talk and act only for the general welfare of everybody, instead of "looking out for number one" or catering to the whims and wishes of "the powers that be" for fear of hurting their own chances of "getting theirs while the getting's good," then they would be on a par with Dr. Townsend who shows no evidence of selfishness, greed or any other trait or trend that is not for the best interests of all, including the said "powers that be" who are blinded and distorted by their selfishness into operations that are detrimental to others outside their own associates. Critics of Dr. Townsend's words and acts are looking down with little, narrow, selfish thoughts, while he is looking up with ideas that harmonize with the eternal verities, with RIGHT as the foundation of a structure that will stand the test of time against the storms of opposition, while the little thinkers and talkers will be forgotten in the "houses built on sand."

Recently we talked with a man who went to school with Franklin D. Roosevelt when they were boys together under 10 years old. He said that unless Roosevelt could have his way at school, he would not play. Evidently that trait in his character has never changed, but has grown with the passing years, so that in his present position he is able to compel everybody to do his bidding "and like it." Well, some may like it, but not all by any means. What is democracy? At the close of every Townsend meeting all over the nation the Townsend Pledge is given, closing with the words: "and rededicate myself to maintain the democratic spirit and form of government in America."

Was the big bazaar a success? "I'll say" it was and you'll say it was. The climax Saturday night culminated with a motion picture of the large crowd gathered to enjoy the final fun.

This may interest those who do not read the Los Angeles Evening News. Quoting an excerpt from an editorial signed "B. C." in a recent issue entitled: "Dictators don't grow in nations thriving with prosperity." These words stare at us: "A prosperous people never had a revolution and never will. The time to worry—the only time to worry is when prosperity has vanished and people are beginning to fear that it will never come back again. Then, as in the early 1930's, demagogues like Long, Coughlin and Townsend get a hearing." This was replied to by George B. Horigan as follows: "Sirs: I cannot understand how you can unload such a mess of 'guff' as was contained in B. C.'s editorial head 'Dictators don't grow in a nation thriving with prosperity.'—As far as calling Dr. Townsend a demagogue is concerned, and classing him with Long, and Coughlin, he only shows the grade of his mentality. A man assuming to write editorials for us ignorant people to read should be much better informed than he is. Would suggest that he attend any Townsend meeting and procure a copy of 'The Townsend Plan' and 'Making Money for the Merchant." When he has read these, if he is not convinced that the Townsend plan is the one way out of the depression, he will at least know a lot more than he does now."

Some people think. Others think they think. Some say things. Others repeat what has been said. The real thinkers of worth while thoughts are leaders, the rest follow. If the real thinkers were all right-minded, then all would be well, and the followers would not be led astray. But the devil is a sly, crafty fellow who gets in his evil thoughts with smooth, charming propaganda and before the followers are aware, they are caught in a trap. Then trouble starts. Well, as we seem to be in a "peak of trouble" most of the time, the devil must have been pretty busy while the "followers" were "asleep at the switch. Moral: Who's to blame? You tell. Is this a "Townsend Topic?" What do you think.

The horse show, to be held in the Olive street park, June 5th, should not only interest horse lovers but dog lovers as well. Through the ages horses and dogs have always been associated. All who have anything to do with horses are aware that a dog, as a stable companion, gives the young horse a great deal of confidence when he is taken on the road of strange sights. A colt may shy when first driven in harness, but when a dog runs alongside of him, he takes notice of the dog and looks upon him as a dependable companion. In years gone by the Dalmation or Coach dog was always a part of this grand adventure. It would be nice to see a pair of these fine dogs trotting along with the parade of beautiful horses.

Do you know that canaries have eyelashes? Look at them through a magnifying glass. They make a yellow fringe about the eye like petals of a sunflower. Tiny and beautifully curled, each one is separated from the others as if they had been touched with mascara.

Timely Tips on Outdoor Life

By JED WELSH

In spite of what some of my friends seem to think, fishing does not occupy my mind more than nine-tenths of the time! I seldom go fishing more than twice a day, and there are days on end when I don't even touch a rod from midnight 'til almost daylight. Why I remember one winter when I didn't go fishing a single day in the month of December!

Notwithstanding this disinclination towards things piscatorial, some friends lured me into going to Big Bear creek last Sunday. Fishing with worms and natural bait is good there now, although the stone-fly larvae was the only artificial lure that brought results. The stream is high but clear and there are lots of native rainbows.

This part of Big Bear creek is called Slide Lake and this is how you get there: Cross Santa Ana river bridge just below Seven Oaks camp. Three quarters of a mile farther the road forks. Take left hand fork 4 1/2 miles to auto club sign pointing right to Clark's ranch. Follow it 4 miles to next auto club sign which will direct you to Slide Lake, Bear Creek 1/2 mile. (And if you think you are mixed up now, you should have been with us last Sunday morning in the dark!) I advise walking upstream at least two miles and using worms or stone-fly larvae for some very good fishing. The road from Clark's ranch will be closed after today.

Big Bear lake has been poor. Arrowhead has been fairly good for deep salmon egg fishing and deep trolling. Those using copper lines in order to get depth in trolling have had excellent results. The fish in Little Rock dam are evidently on a hunger strike and I personally would have nothing to do with them. San Gabriel, Cucamonga, Snow Creek, San Antonio, Strawberry and upper Big Tujunga all offer fair bait fishing. Natural stone-fly larvae are the best bait locally at this time of the season. Deep Creek is still high but a few big fish are being taken on spinners and bait.

Reports from the High Sierras: High lakes still frozen, heavy snow in the passes. Owens river high and murky but good spinner and bait fishing and fair with large wet flies. Rock Creek, Convict creek, McGee creek and Hot creek are all high but have lots of fish. These fish are feeding right on the bottom so sink your bait, line or spinner as deep as possible for best results. Lower Convict and Hilton Lakes report good fly and spinner fishing. Twin Lakes, Mammoth Lakes, Gull and Silver Lake are fair fly fishing and good trolling.

They are not hitting fly on Grant lake, but limits are being taken regularly by trolling. Parker lake is excellent right now and a new road leaves only a mile hike to its shores. Ten days ago I took the limit of most beautiful eastern brook trout from the upper end of the lake.

Bass fishing is still slow in most of the San Diego lakes but reports from Bear, Barrett, Hodges, Moreno and Escondido are good. Crappie fishing continues to be so good that it is luring trout fishermen away from the streams. A fishing army goes to Henshaw and Wohlford every week-end and all seem to come home satisfied.

Frank Briggs, Dooley Jeffries, Ed Gorman, and a pal made fishing history at Silver Lake lately. All took the limit from Grant lake with amazing ease and dexterity which made the natives jealous. Dooley landed a 4 1/2-pound pike at Grant lake, but a week later Mrs. Jeffries completely outdid with an 8 1/2 pound beauty at a local hospital. Nice going, Mrs. J.

Here's Review Of Week-End Sports Parade In Far West

By JAMES A. SULLIVAN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New world's records in track and field, a Davis Cup victory for the United States, and a pair of no-hit no-run games in a Western baseball league topped the sports field over the week-end.

College athletes ended their golf, tennis and baseball seasons and decided conference track and field titles.

The highlights of the weekend included:

Track and Field—Two new world marks were set up at University of Southern California won the Pacific Coast conference championship by one point. Earle Meadows and Bill Sefton, S.C., vaulted 14 feet, 11 inches for one mark and Washington State's relay team ran the four-lap event in 3 min. 12.3 sec. for the other. U.S.C. had 55 points, Stanford 54. Washington State was third and California fourth. In the L.C. 4-A, meet Pitt won the title, by half-a-point over Columbia, 80 to 30. Columbia's Ben Johnson scored a triple in the dashes and the broad jump and Pitt's John Woodruff took both middle distance runs. Lowell Todd, San Jose State, threw the javelin 219 feet, 2 1/2 inches for a new Pacific association junior mark in the junior meet at San Jose. San Mateo J. C. won the team title with San Jose State second.

Crew—Navy's variety won the eastern sprint title by handing Tom Bolles' Harvard crew its first 1937 defeat in the Adams Cup races at Philadelphia. Syracuse surprised by beating Cornell in a two-mile race at Ithaca.

COURAGE GIVES SHUTE SECOND P. G. A. VICTORY

By HENRY MCLEMORE

United Press Staff Correspondent
PITTSBURGH, May 31.—He is the only golfer in America who gets cooler, when things get hotter.

That's why today, Hermon Densmore Shute, of West Newton, Mass., still owns the National Professional Golfers' association championship.

Starting last Wednesday, Shute met on successive days men with as much golf equipment as he had. One by one, he moved them down.

First, it was Joe Turnesa. Then it was Olin Dutra. And after that, in the order named, it was Ed Dudley, Jimmy Hines, Tony Mancro and "Jug" Mcspaden. He met them in the sunshine and in the rain. He met them over the short route and the long haul. He beat 'em, to become first man since Leo Diegel in 1923 to win the toughest of all titles two years in a row.

Wins On 37th
Take yesterday's final with Mcspaden, for example. It went 37 holes, which is about ten too many for a man of Shute's physique. He could double for a lathe by removing his hand, Mcspaden, on the other hand, is a young man on whose frame muscles are rampant. He could play 72 with nothing more to eat than a bowl of consommé.

When they came to the uphill 36th hole, Shute had to take a five-minute rest after his drive. Yet, when they teed off on the 37th, Denny somewhere found enough strength to lay one down the middle for 250 yards. Mcspaden—and this is the entire point of the story—was so much more tired of Shute than Shute was of the course that Mcspaden collapsed at the top of his backswing, and knocked it into the under-brush on the extreme left of the fairway.

That shot cost him a stroke. In fact, it cost him the championship, because when you give Mr. Shute a stroke on the payoff hole you might just as well slant your eyes and fall forward on your own sword. Because you have committed golf Hari Karl.

Shute bagged a par four on this extra hole to retain the title. His par is noteworthy only for this reason—it was the first par that he had shot on this hole all week. From his first qualifying stroke until today, it had been his red-eared jinx. He had always played it in fives and sixes. But, with everything at stake, he followed his fine drive with an iron that was on the stick all the way, and, catching the green, stopped short of the pin by only 15 feet.

This hole climaxed a rally by Shute that would have raised hair on a bald head. With three holes to play, he was two down. He had nothing left but his courage. So he rode along on that, and Mcspaden lost the 16th and 17th with shots that, with the pressure off, he could make with a home made club and a gummy ball.

Shute's victory may cost Mcspaden more than the $1000 that goes to the winner. Because Harold the Jug was shooting for a place on the Ryder Cup team—the place that automatically goes to the winner of the P. G. A. Now he will have to continue his fight against ten other gentlemen in the National Open at Detroit next month.

FROSH UNBEATEN

Universities of Maryland freshmen football, basketball, tennis, and baseball teams finished their seasons undefeated.

Baseball—Aldon Wilkie of Tacoma pitched the second no-hit, no-run game in two days in the Western International league by beating Wenatchee Sunday. Oscar Miller, Yakima, hurled a no-hitter, no-score game Saturday. Oregon, Northern division conference champions, closed its season with a 10-3 win over Oregon State. Oakland stopped the San Francisco Seals' winning streak at eight victories. Oakland obtained first baseman first baseman Rob Gibson from Rochester.

Poppies

By GEORGE MORIARTY

American League Umpire
Dedicated to American athletes who lost their lives in World War

They grew where lads fell fighting.
The poppies all aglow,
A flower's way of lighting
The way they were to go.
For what though life is choppy
And seeks a soldier's doom,
The poppies give caress,
Tis written in the poppy:
His life again shall bloom.

With death in every screaming,
And life a cheery mess,
Instead of loved hands reaching,
The poppies give caress,
They felt young fleeting footsteps
And seemed to understand
Those doughboys would not put steps
Again in poppy-land.

It's just a humble flower
That God grew at their feet,
To show that each last hour
Links life anew, complete.
No friends of war go shouting
O'er Flanders' fields today,
But poppies bloom, saluting
The lads who went away.

WESTMINSTER NEXT FOR S. A.

Santa Ana's surprising Stars will be on the road for a week before they return to the Municipal Bowl June 8 to tackle Orange.

Tomorrow night, Manager "Doc" Smith leads his league-leaders to Westminster and on Friday they play at Riverside in a game that starts the National Night league's second quarter.

Other games Tuesday: Huntington Beach at Colton; Riverside at Orange; Anaheim at San Bernardino. Other games Friday: Colton at San Bernardino; Anaheim at Orange; Huntington Beach at Westminster.

The Anaheim-Riverside game which was rained out last Friday will be played at Riverside July 23 as the second half of a double-header, according to present plans.

No games will be played in the Santa Ana City league tonight on account of Memorial Day, but none of the Orange County league contests has been officially called off.

Following is the schedule: Tustin at Brea; Olive at Elertown; Yorba Linda at Irvine; Holly Sugar company at San Juan Capistrano.

Thursday's City league schedule: Elks vs. Grand Central Market, 7:30 p. m.; Commercial National Bank vs. Montgomery Ward, 8:30.

Feller, Cleveland Question Mark, Tests Sore Arm Today

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, May 31.—The biggest question mark in the majors—Bob Feller—may be answered in Cleveland today when the farmer boy strikeout king of the American league makes his second start of the baseball season.

After fanning 17 in a game last season to break the 28-year-old league record, Feller was lauded with the most choice superlatives of a hero worshipping nation.

But in his first start this season, against the St. Louis Browns, April 24—he hurt his pitching arm and lost. He has been in but one game since, pitched to but one man, and walked him.

Manager Steve O'Neill, realizing the potential value of the young star, has hesitated to work Bob because that forearm muscle was completely healed. He believes it has, and Bob believes it—but neither of them will know definitely until it gets a full nine-inning workout, and that question above all others in baseball, is the one Mr. John Q. Fan wants answered.

Feller was to start the second game of today's Memorial Day double-header against Detroit.

Cleveland's chances for the American league pennant rest squarely on young Bob's shoulders. The Indians have done well without him so far in the tight junior circuit race, but the New York Yankees have begun to assert their tremendous batting power. The Indians, in third place, are 41-2 games from the top. They lost a full game yesterday when they were defeated, 9-6 by the Chicago White Sox while the Yanks were rapping the Philadelphia Athletics, 13-1.

The Detroit Tigers kept pace by swamping the St. Louis Browns, 18-3, under a 20-hit attack, including two home runs each by Hank Greenberg and Gerry Walker. Pete Appleton doled out seven hits and the Washington Senators downed the Boston Red Sox 11-4.

The Chicago Cubs moved into third place in the National league ahead of the St. Louis Cardinals as Larry French turned back Cincinnati with four hits for a 7-1 triumph. The Cards dropped the third of the four-game series, 7-4, to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Philadelphia Phillies stopped the New York Giants' winning streak at eight straight yesterday, 6-3. Home runs by Camilli, Grace and Klein paved the way for Lamaster to triumph over Gumbert.

A 20-hit assault, featured by Gene Moore's home run and triple in the seventh during which Boston scored eight runs, told the story of Brooklyn's 11-4 defeat by the Bees.

The blind sportsman said he could register a hit by the sound of the ball against the bat. By the sound, he said, he also could tell just about where the hit was going.

"I recently called a home run made by Dari Lodigiani, Oakland second baseman," Blumenthal added. "I did it simply by hearing him connect with the ball. It went over the left center field fence and that is where I said it was going."

When he first started going to baseball games after darkness had descended on him, Blumenthal used to carry a small radio set and thus obtained a mental picture from the announcer. But he abandoned that method last year and now has a Braille set to aid in keeping score.

Blind Fan In Oakland 'Sees' And Scores Baseball Games

OAKLAND, May 31.—Ernest Blumenthal, 42, a man who has been blind since 1917 "sees" most of the games played by the Oakland Seals of the Pacific Coast league in their home stadium.

Even more, Blumenthal keeps score on the game in the Braille system, registering each hit.

"Most people won't believe me when I say I can keep score on a baseball game," Blumenthal said. "But I recently called the plays for a friend and missed only five plays in the whole game."

The blind sportsman said he could register a hit by the sound of the ball against the bat. By the sound, he said, he also could tell just about where the hit was going.

When he first started going to baseball games after darkness had descended on him, Blumenthal used to carry a small radio set and thus obtained a mental picture from the announcer. But he abandoned that method last year and now has a Braille set to aid in keeping score.

Blumenthal said his favorite player was "Chick" Outen, Mission catcher, who he said hit the ball, "so you know it's a real hit."

Blumenthal said his favorite team, once owned the Louisville club and later the Denver club, so the blind man has been interested in baseball all his life.

A big German shepherd "seeing eye" dog, that he calls Babe, always accompanies the blind sports fan to all games, leads him in and out of the stadium, and on and off street cars through heavy traffic.

TEAM TO SAIL WEDNESDAY IN QUEST OF CUP

By HENRY SUPER

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
FOREST HILLS, N. Y., May 31.—America continued to play Australia in the North American zone finals of Davis Cup competition today but Uncle Sam's players were more interested in a boat ride than they were in playing the men from "Down Under."

For the score was 3-0 in favor of the United States and no matter what happens on the courts of the West Side Tennis club today America still goes to Europe to make another bid for the prized tennis trophy which has been on the other side of the Atlantic since 1927.

The Americans sail Wednesday to continue the cup quest while Australia also goes on the same boat to compete in the all-England tournament at Wimbledon before continuing on around the globe to home.

Nazis Tougher Than British?
United States has one barrier in its path before it can qualify to challenge for the cup—the European zone winner. That team most likely will be Germany and the experts say that the Nazi squad probably will be even tougher than England, the cup defender.

If the United States gets by Germany then England will be next—and the Union Jack defenders already are conceded loss of the cup because they no longer have Fred Perry.

The United States clinched the series three matches to none, yesterday. So today's two matches—Bryan (Betsy) Grant of Atlanta vs. Jack Crawford; and Donald Budge of Oakland vs. John Bromwich—were mere exhibitions.

Budge and Gene Mako, a husky Los Angeles blond who is the reigning National doubles champion along with his red-headed teammate, nailed down the series with a 7-5, 6-1, 8-6 victory in doubles against Crawford and Vivian McGrath.

Injuries Riddle Aussies
On Saturday, Budge whipped Crawford and Grant defeated Bromwich in straight sets. Yesterday's triumph marked completion of a rout of Australia—a nine straight set victory—that was possible only because injuries had ridded an Antipodes team which the experts had labeled as the squad which must be beaten by anyone seeking to lift the prized silver trophy from England.

Adrian Quist of Australia, the man who teamed with Crawford last year in an "iron man" act that resulted in America being eliminated on this side of the water for the first time in all its crusades for the cup since 1927, checked in last week with a bad stomach. He was unable to hold down the No. 2 singles spot. McGrath, an able substitute, was ailing on Saturday so the important singles post went to Bromwich, an 18-year-old youth making his first Davis Cup start.

it to such an extent that the rules had to be changed. They everlastingly changed the rules to keep pace with Kaute Rocknes and Hugo Bezdek.

And any football man will tell you that if Bez missed in Rock's class it wasn't by any wide margin.

Bezdek quit coaching Penn State football in 1930 because he saw greater work ahead as dean of the school of physical education and athletics. Bez "turned square," as the boys say, and developed the department to a point where it today stands as a model for practically every other institution in the world. Few schools have put on intra-mural sports as has Penn State under Bezdek.

But Penn State alumni were disappointed with Bezdek because the football team he didn't coach didn't win.

COMES TO HIS SENSES
They forgot that Bezdek brigades from 1919 to 1921, inclusive, were undefeated, and went around and over 30 rivals. Among the Nittany Lions victims, while Bezdek was shooting as a football strategist, were such mighty giants of the chalked lines as Pittsburgh, Georgia Tech, Nebraska, Pennsylvania, Cornell, Harvard, and Navy.

After this winning streak, Bezdek got to wondering if the worry, strain, and physical punishment imposed on the young players was worth it all.

He came to the conclusion that it wasn't and started campaigning for less emphasis on football and more emphasis on sports for everybody.

He wanted to forget high-pressure football with its long spring and fall training, frantic scouting trips through the mines and around the farm country, long hours of daily practice at the sacrifice of studies, and the mad desire to pack stadiums on Saturday afternoons.

Addressing the Society of Directors of Physical Education, Bezdek said:

"We should not find ourselves in the position of placing the maintenance of physical education on the gate receipts from football. It places too much pressure on the athletes. It places all the emphasis on the scoreboard and diverts attention from the far more important objects of the game—development of body, heart, spirit, and mind."

CLEVELAND—Hugo Frank Bezdek, who incurred the wrath of some alumni of Pennsylvania State college for refusing to tolerate professionalism on his collegiate football team now finds himself a professional.

Bezdek has signed to coach the Cleveland Rams of the National League of Professional Football Clubs.

Cleveland fans hope that he will now turn his efforts to stamping out amateurism at their own League Park.

They can bet on Bez. He will. Bezdek is the most important athletic personage ever engaged by professional football.

The Chicago Bohemian is one of the all-time greats among coaches.

It is easy for him to stand on his record—as Amos Alonzo Stagg's assistant at Chicago and as head coach of Arkansas, Oregon, and Penn State.

Bezdek is the only football coach who ever managed a major league baseball club. He guided the Pittsburgh Pirates in 1917, '18 and '19, after gaining the late Barney Dreyfuss' confidence as a scout.

But Bezdek is a football character for no other reason than that he left the Buccaneers voluntarily to devote all his time and attention to the gridiron.

IMPROVED FOOTBALL
Bezdek made a number of important contributions to football. He was first to spin the spinner. He developed the screened pass to a point where it had to be prohibited.

He perfected the quick kick, and after the on-side kick was originated he took advantage of

ANAHEIM PAYS TRIBUTE TO THE WAR DEAD

ANAHEIM, May 31.—Anaheim residents joined to honor the war dead this morning when services were held jointly by the veteran groups at Anaheim cemetery.

Leo J. Frills, Anaheim attorney, paid tribute to the departed soldier boys in a stirring Memorial Day address. The program opened with the raising of the colors by Boy Scouts of Troop 72. The Legion drum and bugle corps sounded "To the Colors" after which the flag was dropped to half mast.

James Hefron explained the ideals which the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier represents and the women's groups placed wreaths around the tomb. A firing squad from Company K, 185th Infantry, California National Guard, fired the last salute and the buglers sounded "Taps."

Master of ceremonies was William P. Webb Jr., first commander of the Anaheim post of the American Legion, Gold Star Mothers and Medal of Honor men were introduced as were heads of the participating organizations, the Legion, Legion auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Auxiliary, Women's Relief Corps, Daughters of the American Revolution, and Daughters of both Union and Confederate Veterans.

Eric Baxter, Anaheim high school boy, recited the Gettysburg Address and Mrs. Walter Ross sang. The invocation was given by the Rev. Fr. James Nevin, the Rev. S. E. Schrader giving the benediction.

Laguna Business Women Outline Summer Program

LAGUNA BEACH, May 31.—The following tentative schedule of summer activities of the Laguna Beach Business and Professional Women's Club was approved at a meeting held recently at Hotel Laguna. Mrs. Ada E. Purpus, recently installed president, announced. The monthly dinner and business meeting of the Orange County B. & P. W. Club, to be held June 25 at the Mad Hatter Cafe in Laguna Beach, will be attended by the local club, in force.

During July, the principal activity will be a "steak bake" to be held at the home of Mrs. Myrtle Goff, past-president of the club. August will see a barbecue and outdoor gathering at Heister Park where barbecue tables and benches, with grills and water supply have been installed at the expense of the B. & P. W. Club, labor being provided by WPA.

The September meeting will be held at the Tray Door cafe, marking the close of the summer schedule; and, with the October meeting, regular business sessions will be recommended.

Bride Elect Is Shower Honoree

FULLERTON, May 31.—Miss Jean Farran of Newport place, Fullerton, was hostess at a miscellaneous shower Thursday evening, honoring Miss Helen Mae Stone, Junior college student, who will become the bride of Grey Simpson on June 24.

The Farran home was beautifully decorated with seasonal blooms and the evening was spent in playing games. Miss Stone is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Stone of North Raymond avenue, Fullerton.

After the bride-elect opened her presents, the hostess served refreshments. Sixteen guests attended.

PLAN SCHOOL DANCE

TUSTIN, May 31.—With Miss Lois Casey in charge of arrangements, the students of Tustin union high school will hold a dance at 8:30 p. m., June 4, in the Tustin Knights of Pythias hall.

Hall and Stan Bortz and his nine piece orchestra will provide the music.

POPULAR COUNTY RESORT

Scenes similar to the one pictured here have been re-enacted many times along the shore of Newport Bay. This year, if present estimates are correct, even greater crowds may be expected. Today, hundreds of people from all over Southern California are visiting in the popular Balboa-Newport resort.

Feather Weight Boat Races To Be Held at Newport Bay Soon

NEWPORT-BALBOA, May 31.—Kayak artists of Southern California, several of which are world champions, are expected to be at Newport harbor on Sunday, June 13, to participate in the many kayak events that are to be staged on the quiet water of the bay and also in the surf along the ocean front.

The girl champions who represented the United States in Germany a year ago during the Olympic Games under the tutelage of W. H. Austin of Santa Barbara, internationally known designer and builder of these feather-weight craft, are expected to take part in the contests, and Frank Davenport, in charge of water sports of the Long Beach playground commission, has been asked to arrange for experts from Los Angeles county to participate.

The Fullerton Kayak club, who has carried away many of the highest prizes in recent years, will be at the meet in force, if it has been assured by Ralph Marsden, dean of the sport in Southern California and head of the shop at Fullerton Junior college where many of the best designed and built kayaks are made. The Fullerton group includes both men and women and includes members who are expert at handling the light craft in the roughest water.

Hal G. Polley, head of the Industrial Arts department of the Placentia high school has organized a junior yacht club among the students of the high school with considerable attention being given to kayaking, and this group has been asked to be in this year's meet.

The local Chamber of Commerce will award suitable trophies for the winners in the various events. The activities on the bay will be off Fifteenth street, it was announced and activities on the ocean front will be on the opposite side of the peninsula. Three medals will be given for each event, it has been announced, with four for relays.

The program, which begins at 12:30 o'clock in the afternoon, will include a 400-meter race for boys under 140 pounds and under 21 years of age; 400-meters for boys over 140 pounds and 21 years; 600 meters for the two above classes; and 600 meters for boys who never won a first or second in this or any other kayak event.

There will be a special open 1000 meter event for men; 400 meters for girls; a 400-meter relay event for girls; 600 meters for girls and a relay race for teams of four girls, each to race 200 meters. There will be a relay race for men also similar to the girls event.

Judges will be C. P. L. Nicholls, Los Angeles; Frank Davenport, Long Beach, and W. H. Van Dantker, Fullerton. Everis Nelson of Fullerton; Frank Crocker of Newport Beach and Ralph K. Reed, Newport Harbor Union High school coach, will act as starters, and harbormaster Thomas Bouchev, Don Douglas and Hal G. Polley will serve as timekeepers.

Those in charge of general arrangements are R. A. Marsden, W. H. Austin and Harry Welch.

Polution By Oil To Be Meet Topic

NEWPORT BEACH, May 31.—Beach oil pollution will be the chief topic of discussion, when the Public Beach Coordinating committee of Southern California meets at the local Legion hall tomorrow morning, announcing to Frank Crocker, head of the local committee on arrangements. Theodore Robins, president of the Chamber of Commerce, has named C. F. Dennison, Newport Beach; Hubbard Howe, Corona Del Mar; J. P. Greeley, Balboa; and Paul A. Palmer of Lido Isle as other members of the committee. Invitations have been extended to mayors of neighboring cities and members of other Chambers of Commerce of Orange to attend.

Farwell Party Given To Honor G G. Couples

GARDEN GROVE, May 31.—Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Fulson opened their home on North Euclid avenue Friday evening to members of the Lions club and their wives for a farewell gathering in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lake who are leaving next week for Texas and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Johnson who moved several weeks ago to Fresno and came down for the occasion. Both families have been prominent in civic and social affairs of the community.

Tables were arranged for bridge and monopoly. In the bridge games first prizes went to Mrs. Charles Lake and Clair Head and consolation to Mrs. Robert Goetz and Charles Lamb. The monopoly prize was won by Don Vance. On behalf of the club members Jack Crill, president of the group, presented both families with a farewell gift.

For the refreshments of ice cream with orange ice centers, cake and coffee the card tables were centered with flowers in pastel shades. Present were Mr. and Mrs. Ray Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lake, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Lake, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Goetz, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lamb, Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Collins, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. ## RAIN OR SHINE, MEMORIAL DAY WEEK END USHERS IN SUMMER SEASON FOR COUNTY'S BEACHES

This week end marks the real beginning of the summer season in so far as Orange county's coast towns are concerned.

It may be raining, cold and dreary; lightning may play havoc with cabanas on the beaches, but it's summer, just the same. Not officially, of course, because the World Almanac says that summer will start at 3:12 p. m., June 21.

This date, June 21, is arrived at fixed and otherwise set by the action of the sun. This date is called the beginning of the summer solstice. "In June, the North Pole is tilted 23 degrees and 27 minutes toward the sun, and the days in the northern hemisphere are longer and the nights shorter; at the same time, the days in the southern hemisphere are shorter than the nights," says the book on facts.

All this is very interesting indeed, but doesn't mean a thing so far as San Clemente, Laguna Beach, Newport, Balboa, Huntington Beach and Seal Beach are concerned. Even if the Almanac does say that summer is some 21 days in the offing, chamber of commerce officials along the coast line are ushering the season in this week-end while thousands of tourists take advantage of the holiday.

Umbrellas, sprouting out of the sands like mushrooms, shelter timid bathers from the blistering rays of the sun. Life guards are kept busy trying to prevent ignorant, foolhardy and over zealous bathers from going down the third and last time. Little Willie, having fun, goes up and down the beach spreading little rays of sunshine and grains of sand in the old man's picnic lunch, thereby causing cussing.

It's a picture that will be repeated continuously until the end of summer, which the Almanac says will fall at 6:23 in the evening on September 23, which hour also marks the beginning of fall. So says the Almanac, book of facts.

Dana Winters will serve as secretary. Other charter members are Matt Walker and Clarence Nida.

TUSTIN PYTHIANS HONOR MEMBER ON BIRTHDAY

TUSTIN, May 31.—The birthday anniversary of their hostess, Mrs. Walter Peruzzi, Laguna road, was the occasion for a pleasant celebration Wednesday when members of the Altruistic circle of Tustin Pythian Sisters met for their regular all-day monthly meeting.

Mrs. Peruzzi, unaware that the guests knew it was her natal anniversary, was showered with a number of lovely birthday gifts and her three sisters, Mesdames Stella Riehl, Bertha Trickey and Effie Matthews, gave the ice cream and a beautiful birthday cake which were served with the potluck luncheon at 12:30 o'clock. The menu was served at small tables.

BUENA PARK POST PLANS CARNIVAL FOR JUNE 8-13

BUENA PARK, May 31.—Plans for future activities were made at the special meeting of the American Legion post recently at Memorial hall, when decision was made to sponsor a carnival in Buena Park June 8 to 13. June 11 has been designated as Legion day at the carnival and invitations to attend will be sent to the various Legion posts of the county. The carnival will be located on Manchester boulevard just west of Grand avenue, the territory occupied by the carnival during the industrial celebration of last fall.

Announcement was also made of a benefit stag party and evening of cards scheduled for this evening at the hall. A second benefit stag affair is also planned for the evening of June 11.

Tentative plans were made to send a boy from Buena Park to Sacramento in June for the state Legion Americanism program. Definite announcement will be made concerning this project with the June 4 meeting.

I. D. Jaynes, chairman of the committee in charge of the annual sale of fireworks reported that locations for the various Legion stands were being secured and arrangements for the sale would be completed at an early date.

SILVER ACRES

Mrs. Sidney Eggleton and her children, Richard and Ardis, Edith Marie Hubert, Barbara Eggleton and Bill Smith, went to Huntington Beach on Wednesday where they enjoyed a picnic lunch on the beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie G. Hubert were in Los Angeles the first of the week to meet the former's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond F. Jacobs, who arrived by train from Long Island, New York, for a visit at the Hubert home. On Tuesday they visited San Diego and Tijuana, Mexico, and on Thursday Mr. Hubert and Mr. Jacobs spent the day deep sea fishing on the fishing boat off Newport Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Van Kairsbeik and Mr. and Mrs. John Pauwels were guests at dinner on Thursday of the former's son and daughter in law, Mr. and Mrs. Harmon Van Kairsbeik, at their home in Costa Mesa.

Ardis Eggleton while playing on the beach at Newport Beach, cut her foot on sharp rocks, making several stitches necessary to close the wound. She is recovering nicely at her home on North Verano street.

Fullerton Club Women Install New Officers, Committee Heads

FULLERTON, May 31.—"World Vistas" was the topic appropriately chosen by J. E. Donaldson, world traveler who spoke before the Woman's club of Fullerton, recently at the home of Mrs. F. Harold Gobar. Donaldson spoke of his travels through China, Egypt and Palestine.

Installation of officers and the naming of committee chairman preceded the lecture, with Mrs. W. J. Frank presiding. Annual reports were read and at the close of the business session Mrs. J. E. Lewis presented Mrs. Frank, the president with a basket of lovely flowers, the club's gift of appreciation to the president for her year's work.

The new officers installed the following chairmen: Mrs. C. W. Trotter, program; Mrs. A. R. Ellis, music; Mrs. A. Curtis Bray, publicity; Mrs. Bertha Lischen, membership; Mrs. J. E. Lewis, courtesy; Mrs. A. S. Redfern, hostess; Mrs. Grace Ford, literature; Mrs. George Gobar, law observance; Mrs. Lloyd Fuller, conservation; Mrs. J. A. Williams, motion picture; Mrs. Homer Benis, transportation; Mrs. S. W. Douglas, history; Mrs. Ella Pace, Mrs. J. H. Daniels, public welfare; and Mrs. S. W. Wendell, auditor.

Assisting hostesses were Mrs. J. W. Sherwood, Mrs. W. T. Brown, Mrs. Lillian Rivers, Mrs. Lloyd Fuller, Mrs. Owen Richelle, and Mrs. William Webster. The Gobar home was beautifully decorated with seasonal flowers. Mrs. Frank and Mrs. Grace Ford presided at the social hour. This meeting marked the final meeting of the fiscal year for the club.

Arrangements for the luncheon were in charge of Mrs. Yvette Shelden, chairman, and her two assistants, Mrs. Emma Cochems and Mrs. Pearl Furtch.

Mrs. Jessie Hearth, of Santa Ana, a grand juror from Kansas Pythian Sisters, was a special guest. Present, other than the hostess, Mrs. Peruzzi, were Mrs. Stella Riehl, of Orange; Mrs. Laura Sanborn, Mrs. Emma Cochems and Mrs. Fannie Cunningham, of Santa Ana; Mesdames Vera Hawkins, Emma Christensen, Mollie Smith, Lottie Nordstrom, Sarah May Matthews, Eva Holford, Florence McCharles, Effie Matthews, Violet Irvine, Mabel Hannaford, Ora Collier, Edith Matthews, Dolly Holbrook and daughter, Joyce, Bertha Trickey, Thelma Cooper, Grace Leinberger, Mary Rumlens, Hilda Riehl, Mary Thompson, Pearl Furtch, Gladys Pierson, and Beulah Hamilton, of Tustin.

INTERESTED IN
PRIZE CONTEST

Photographers are turning interested eyes toward Newport Harbor with the possibility in mind of winning one of the prizes offered in the first annual photographic contest in that district. A grand prize of $100 is offered, second prize is $25, third prize is $15, fourth prize $10, with 16 merit prizes of $5 each.

An amateur has an equal chance with any other entrant because all subjects must be taken at the Newport Harbor on or after May 1 and up until the close of the contest July 17, 1937, it is stated. The contest is sponsored by the Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce.

Exhibit Planned

The photographs will be exhibited in the first annual Newport Harbor salon of photography at the Newport Beach Grammar school, Thirteenth street and Central avenue starting August 1, daily except Sundays, until August 15. No photographs may be removed during the exhibit. The photographs may be any size within mounting limits which have been set at 14 inches by 20 inches and which must be filed with the Chamber of Commerce not later than July 15. They may be mailed or delivered.

The name and address of the person taking the picture must be placed on the back of the cardboard mount together with the date of the exposure. Any winning photograph or duplicate print is to become the property of the Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce and the organization is to be given the right to reproduce the picture in any desired form.

Memories Of Historic
Spanish Family Told
In Story Of Rancho

By MRS. J. E. PLEASANTS

Rancho Canada de los Alisos and the Serrano family are so closely interwoven with the early history of Orange county, that the passing of a prominent member of the family is regretted by all who value the pioneers of our early communities.

Don Jose Serrano, grantee of this rancho and grandfather of Miss Nimfa Serrano, lately deceased, was a man of prominence. Besides the management of his own large holdings he held the office of Juez del Campo in 1835.

Chief Arbitrator

This was an important office as it gave its holder jurisdiction over all rodeos in his department, and the settling of all disputes between the owners of stock; stock raising being the main business of the country.

It required a man of sound judgment, a keen sense of justice and some diplomacy. His father, Don Francisco Serrano, was the founder of the family in this section. Francisco Serrano is listed in Bancroft's Pioneer Index as coming to California between 1790 and 1800. He was alcalde in Los Angeles in 1799.

Grant in 1842

An alcalde carried most of the responsibility of his town or city, the office combining in one the duties which are now performed by several officials in a city. The grant of the Aliso rancho was made to Jose Serrano by Governor Alvarado in 1842. It contained two and one-half leagues or approximately 10,638 acres.

Beginning in the Santiago canyon, it crossed the divide and extended along the Aliso creek joining the Niguel ranch on the south and Lomas de Santiago on the west. Don Jose Serrano married Petra Avila, sister of Don Juan Avila, grantee of Rancho Niguel, now the Moulton ranch. The children of this marriage were seven sons and four daughters: Joaquin, Francisco, Reyes, Ruperto, Jose, Cornelio, and Juan Pablo. The daughters were Isabel, who became the wife of Juan Yorba, Concepcion, wife of Raimundo Yorba, Josefa, wife of Macdonia Rios and Refugio, wife of Dolores Garcia.

Guests of Serranos

Don Jose built his first rancho house on the southeast corner of his land, on a little slope just above the Camino Real, now the 101 Highway near the Aliso creek bridge. Here the family lived for many years, but later built a new house and moved to what is now known as the Whiting adobe. The exact date of the erection of this building cannot be determined, but all the evidence points to the early '60s.

Judge Benjamin Hayes in his published diary mentions staying overnight at the Serrano home on the Camino Real, on his way to San Diego, to attend court, in 1866. J. E. Pleasants visited the Serranos at that place after 1861.

Called El Toro

When the new house was built and the family settled, the cattle was moved to the range nearby. The cattle being moved to a new location, were restless and there was, as is usual, considerable bellowing and commotion among the toros (bulls), who were of different herds and strange to each other.

The numerous Indian retainers who worked on the rancho called the place El Toro because of this and the new house, in jest, was called El Toro House. There are Angels Camera club, and a third judge is to be chosen by these two.

The salon committee includes: Ted Cook of Emerald Bay, chairman, Victor Fleming of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer; Jascha Heifitz, violinist; Harry Carey, motion picture star, and Greg Toland of the Samuel Goldwyn studio. The general committee members in charge of arrangements are Theodore Robins, president of the Chamber of Commerce of Newport Harbor, Shelby Cook, Balboa Island, L. W. Brizger, Balboa, H. L. Sherman, Balboa, H. O. Ensign, principal of Newport Beach Grammar school.

Restless Santa Anans
Spend $50,000 A Year
In Better-Home Quest

By FRANK H. COOEY

Register Staff Writer

Restless Santa Anans spend approximately $50,000 a year to satisfy their desire to be on the move, according to an unofficial survey made here. The figures, supplied separately by five local moving companies, are based on estimates of the moving business in the city.

It is estimated that 2700 families move each year at approximately $19 a job, for a total of a little more than $50,000 annually. The average of each job was figured on a basis of 70 per cent of the work being done in Santa Ana and 30 per cent in inter-city hauls. The average city haul is figured at approximately $9 and the inter-city at approximately $35.

Glad-Hander, 2001

Chief among the extra-occupational duties of the moving man is that of "functional welcome committee" for the large numbers of newcomers that are helping to swell Santa Ana's rapidly growing population.

The movers usually are one of the first contacts the newcomer has and, if "first impressions are lasting," it is of vital importance to the community that new arrivals are properly greeted, it was pointed out.

Must Be Jovial

In handling his local business, the mover has plenty of opportunity to further exercise his unfailing good humor because moving-time is liable to irritate the most placid of housewives.

The various estimates given were supplied by the managers of companies that include: Dickinson Van and Storage Co., Hasid's Van and Storage Co., Penn Transfer and Storage Co., Santa Ana Transfer and Storage Co., and Wright's Transfer and Storage Co.

Is Timmy Gone, Or Is
Patty Out? Well, One
Is; You Puzzle Now

By BILL KAY

LAGUNA BEACH, May 31.—Miss Timmy and Miss Patty Vilotte live in Laguna Beach. Now, these duplicate gals are, as nearly as humanly possible, "identical" twins; that is to say, twins in whom resemblance is more than merely physical. To be an identical twin, you must resemble your counterpart in likes, dislikes, propensities, tastes and distastes.

So it is with the Vilottes, Patty and Timmy, whose pictures show translucent, greenish-grey eyes, that, fringed with dark lashes, are striking features and also are identical.

Rare Judgment

We now are about to relate some of their local identical activities, with the earnest assurance that the facts are exactly as stated—both girls came from Florida, same being Florida's loss and California's gain, but in any case indicating identical rare judgment.

Next: Each little lady works in a drug store—each drug store being under different ownership, but their duties being identical. Patty is at Jordan's, and Timmy is at Mayor Mallow's.

In view of their identity of occupation, opportunities for substituting, one for the other, might easily suggest themselves. Thus, Patty—or, was it Timmy?—spent a week at Catalina recently. There are those around town who opine that the week's vacation was split, Patty using half of it, while Timmy acted as "stand-in."

"Snowbound" Was "Wittier"

This is probably a canard—something you "canardly" believe. But wait a bit, please. Both girls, at eventide, assume identical duties as box-office cashiers at the town's two movie houses, which, by the way, are under identical management. At one house, four dimes is the admission fee; at the other one, around the corner, two bits is the tap one stands to get inside.

Opportunities for confusion, especially if one be slightly preoccupied at the time, are presented here. One can imagine a Scot, averse to blowing in four dimes at once, proceeding to the two-bit movie show, and, confronted by identically attractive box-office cashier, doubt his eyesight. Oh, well; into each life, some rain must fall; besides, this is getting complicated. Let's see:

Both the Vilotte sisters were featured, in the bays of local beauties used as living decorations on the Laguna Beach entry in the last New Year's day Pasadena Rose tournament, where Laguna Beach won first prize in its class.

Both Vilottes swim, both ride horseback; both enjoy reading the same type of literature. They dress alike, not from affection or twin-embodiment, but simply because their tastes are identical, as might have been mentioned already.

Some day, with the vogue for twins in movies now growing more pronounced, some smart producer is likely to obtain identical signatures to identical contracts for the Vilotte girls' services. One could act as stand-in for the other; only, there'd be added chance for confusion, in case Patty (let's say) acting as stand-in for Timmy (let's say that, too) revealed upon Timmy to act as stand-in for herself, while the stand-in rested. Now I am mixed up—but by now, you've got the general idea, which is, that there are identical Vilotte twins in Laguna Beach.

The planet Mercury has no satellites.

Auld Lang Syne Club Luncheon Held in Laguna Beach

The Laguna Beach home of Mr. and Mrs. Merton Hill was scene of a covered dish luncheon for members of the Auld Lang Syne club Friday afternoon.

The luncheon was served buffet style, guests gathered around the blazing fire on the open hearth. A short business meeting was presided over by Mrs. Lydia Mitchell who read a letter from the president, Mrs. Estelle Harper, who is vacationing in the eastern states.

The next meeting of the club July 30 will be a get-together of former Garden Grove school students at Recreation park in Long Beach. The next regular meeting will be September 20 with Mrs. Bruce Kelly as trustee.

Dr. W. R. Hill showed moving pictures of a previous meeting of the club, which was held in his home in Laguna Beach.

Members present included Mesdames Rose Hill, Fannie Newsum, of Long Beach; Jennie Johnson of Laguna Beach; Miss Newsum Lydia Mitchell, Carrie Chaffee, Miss Lettie Chaffee of Garden Grove; Mrs. Carrie Small, Whittier; Mrs. Effie Kelly, Irvine; Mrs. Emma King Wassum, Miss Percie Head of this city; and guests, Dr. W. R. Hill, Clifton Small, Harvey Newsum, Edwin Chaffee, Mrs. George Rayburn, Dr. and Mrs. Burns Chaffee, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Chaffee and Mrs. Elmer Nichols.

New Jersey Residents Arrive for Visit in Nicholson Home

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gross and young son, Kenny, of Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., have arrived for an extended visit with Mrs. Gross' parents, brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Nicholson, Kenneth and Miss Pearl Nicholson, 1911 Spurgeon street, Mrs. Gross will be remembered as Miss Jean Nicholson, former resident of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholson have been entertaining a number of guests recently. Their son-in-law, Carl D. McKinley of Greeley, Colo., who had been visiting with his brother, Howard D. McKinley in Oakland stopped here for several days, concluding his stay in this city Saturday evening. Mrs. McKinley was here for a visit last fall.

Among other guests in the Nicholson home during Mr. McKinley's stay was a family friend, Miss Genevieve Cox of Los Angeles. She and Mrs. McKinley formerly taught school together in Canyon City, Colo.

First in Dance Series At Country Club Preceded by Dinner

Eighty couples attended the first in a series of dances at Santa Ana Country club Friday evening, dancing to the music of Huston Hertz's orchestra.

The affair was preceded by a dinner served at tables centered with magnolia blossoms in long low bowls. The ballroom was decorated with large baskets of yellow Scotch broom and blue tapers.

Committee for the evening included Messrs. and Mesdames R. C. Hoiles, Harold Nelson, John Swank, who assisted Messrs. and Mesdames Robert Fernandez, Riley Huber and Roy E. Langley, permanent dance committee.

BABY DAUGHTER

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Rittner, 520 South B street in Tustin, are parents of a seven-pound, one ounce daughter, Samantha Ann, born Friday morning, May 28, at St. Joseph hospital. This is their first child.

The baby's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Rittner and Mrs. Maude Ferguson, residents of Tustin. Mrs. Elmer Rittner is the former Miss Helen Ferguson.

Girl Reserves Welcome Their Mothers at Fashion Tea

Girl Reserve activities for the spring season reached a happy climax Friday afternoon when the young people, aided by members of Girl Reserve committee, gave a fashion tea honoring their mothers. Y.W.C.A. rooms were setting for the event.

Mrs. D. O. Michelsen of the fine arts department of the University of Southern California gave a talk on "Personality of Dress." Rankins, under supervision of Miss Mable Cole showed fashions for junior high girls. Models were the Misses Lily May McDonald and Enid Jones of Lathrop; Cecelia Phillips and Madeline Swensen, Willard.

Mrs. John McCoy, chairman of Girl Reserve committee, presided, introducing members of the committee as well as Girl Reserves and their mothers. Miss Mary W. Howard, general secretary of Y.W.C.A., welcomed the group on behalf of the association. Miss Mary Porter, Girl Reserve secretary, outlined plans for summer camps at Torqua on Catalina island, June 21-28; at Osceola, August 14-21, for senior high girls, and from August 21-28 for junior high girls.

Dances were given by Mexican Girl Reserves, the Misses Annie Belmont, Rita Peliz, Bertha Ortiz, Hortensia Flores, Georgia Monreal, Carman Hernandez, Helen Reyes, Sally Gordon, Ercinia Rubio and Susy Morales. They were directed by Mrs. Mabel Spizky, Trio Mexico, played.

Mrs. Braden Finch, Mrs. Glenn Tidball and Mrs. Hubert Nall were responsible for party decorations. Mrs. K. H. Sutherland, former Girl Reserve committee chairman, presided at the tea table.

Sons, Daughters Hold Dinner Meeting

Sons and Daughters of Union Veterans held a monthly dinner meeting Friday evening in M.W.A. hall, with Mrs. Nellie Parker, Mrs. Anna Cozad and Mrs. Cora Graham in charge of arrangements for the affair. Cards were played following dinner.

Announcement was made that Sons and Daughters had made 254 bouquets for graves of G.A.R. comrades. Other bouquets were made by the groups yesterday. This morning the Sons and Daughters of Union Veterans took special part in services at Fairhaven cemetery. Daughters will hold a covered dish luncheon Thursday, June 17, at Laguna Beach. Mrs. Jennie Johnson will be in charge.

De B. Hanna, W. E. Martin, Mary McGinnis, Edward R. Binford, Charles Kyte and E. R. Schneider.

Lane-Snow Wedding Has Setting in Home Of Bridegroom's Uncle

Miss Mabel Evelyn Snow of Placerville and Clarence Allen Lane, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Lane of Ritchey street were married at a quiet ceremony Saturday evening, May 29 at 8 o'clock in the home of the bridegroom's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Wyne, Ritchey street. Twenty guests were present.

The Rev. Herman B. Landis, pastor of the Church of the Brethren in which both the bridegroom and bride hold membership, officiated at the nuptials. Miss Snow was gowned in white embroidered organdie, with a floor length veil which fell from a cap arrangement with clusters of orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of pink sweet peas and carnations. Her sister-in-law, Mrs. Walter D. Snow as matron of honor wore white and carried white sweet peas and pink primroses. Walter D. Snow was best man.

Pianist was Miss Vivienne M. Wyne, who played several solos, in addition to accompaniment for Odelle Jordan, who sang "At Dawning" and "Oh Promise Me." Mr. and Mrs. Lane left for a honeymoon trip through Northern California, planning to return to Santa Ana to establish their home. Mr. Lane is engaged in ranching. He is a graduate of Garfield High school, Los Angeles and his bride had her schooling in the north.

Miss Ruth Rowland to Spend Summer in The Orient

Miss Ruth Rowland, Santa Ana who has been teaching in Hilo high school on the island of Hawaii for the past year plans to make a tour of China and Japan this summer, returning to Santa Ana late in August, according to word received here.

Miss Rowland will sail from the Hawaiian islands June 15 for the Orient, remaining there for several weeks. She expects to begin the return trip early in August, arriving in San Francisco August 15, and resuming her teaching duties at Santa Ana high school in September.

Her place as head of the home economics department of Santa Ana high school has been filled by Miss Nellie Connolly, an exchange teacher from Hawaii, during the past year.

College Gauchos Stage Annual Sports Dance

In the old Spanish atmosphere of the Rio Hondo country club, Los Gauchos held their annual sports dance Friday night.

With an attendance of approximately 125 couples, the dance formed one of the high lights of the college year. Providing music for the affair were Tommy Moreland and his band. Fruit punch was served during the evening.

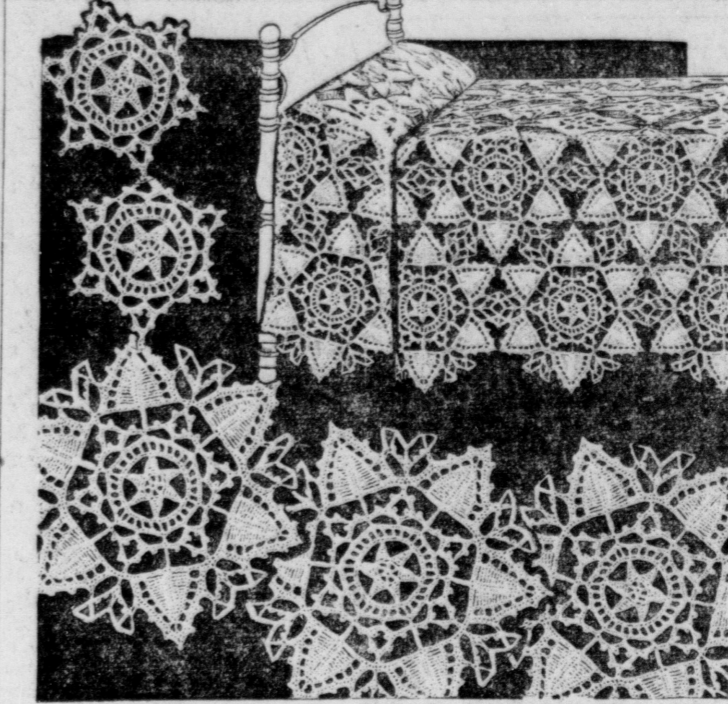

Special music was offered by Junior college students, the program consisting of musical selections by Fred Erdhaus, Jack Wood, and a trio made up of Misses Marjorie Wonder, Evelyn Richards, and Josephine Keeler.

In charge of the affair were Charles McIntyre, Bob Browning, Jerry Roland, Phil Downs, Bob Reif and Robert Forney.

Present as chaperones of the dance were Mr. and Mrs. Calvin C. Flint and Harry P. Jackson.

Wing collars and wide, black bow ties should be worn with tuxedos.

Laura Wheeler Crocheted "Stars" Have Beauty That Endures

CROCHETED MEDALLIONS PATTERN 1464

Like a luxurious-looking spread of lacy transparency? Here it is, and it's almost unbelievable that so rich a design is crocheted of humble string. The large medallions (8 3/4 inches) are done singly and joined for spread or cloth; smaller matching "star" medallions (4 1/2 inches) work up even faster for scarfs, chair or buffet sets. Here's beauty that really endures! Pattern 1464 contains complete directions for making the medallions shown; illustrations of them and of stitches used; material requirements; a photograph of the medallions.

Mrs. Ray, Young Son Arrive for Visit In This City

Mrs. C. C. Ray (Madeline Keech) and four-year-old son, Danny, who arrived from Honolulu Saturday on the Lurline, are guests in the home of Mrs. Ray's mother, Mrs. E. E. Keech, of this city. They will be joined June 8 or 9 by Lieutenant Ray, U.S.N., who will sail for the mainland with the fleet.

In mid-June, Lieutenant and Mrs. Ray and their son will leave for Berkeley, where the former will be instructor in naval tactics at the University of California for the next two years.

Lieutenant and Mrs. Ray were married in Honolulu six years ago, and shortly after that returned to the mainland to make their home. Three years ago they left for the Hawaiian islands, where they have resided up until the present time.

Officers of Episcopal Women's Groups Are Luncheon Guests

Officers of Messiah Guild, Women's Auxiliary and St. Elizabeth's Guild of Episcopal Church of Messiah were guests at a luncheon given Friday afternoon when Miss Minnie Besser was hostess in her home, 2042 North Ross street. Miss Besser is president of the Women's Auxiliary.

Mrs. William Wollaston had sent in the lovely pansies which brightened the luncheon table, with its glowing rose tapers and pretty Madeira linens.

Prize winners in bridge were Mrs. H. L. Stone, Mrs. B. Perkins and Mrs. E. F. Mathews, who scored first, second high and low.

Miss Besser was assisted by Mrs. E. F. Mathews of this city and Mrs. Marshall Keeler of Balboa Island. Other guests were Mesdames H. L. Stone, J. L. Allen, George Perkins, E. F. Mathews, A. H. T. Taylor, J. W. Crawford, William Wollaston and Theo Bolte.

Spinsters Compliment Their Mothers At Tea

Honoring their mothers Spinsters held a tea Friday afternoon in the home of Miss Betty Hammond, 2024 Victoria Drive.

Members of the group took this opportunity to announce names of the new officers, who include the Misses La Vonne Franson, president; Elaine MacReynolds, vice president; Marian Doty, secretary; Virginia Sheppard, pledge mistress. Sweet peas in pastel shades centered a charming candelit table from which the hostesses served tea to their mothers. Touches of white and silver in table appointments added a lovely background for the color motif.

Pouring tea were Mesdames Grace M. Knipe and Arthur Sitton, advisors of Spinsters, and Mrs. D. K. Hammond. Music offered by Miss Marian Powell entertained guests during the tea hour.

In charge of the party were the Misses Carolyn Davis, Barbara Hallman and Anne Wetherell.

Guests included Mesdames Robert M. Northeross, George Angne, Frank Was, Charles Doty, Frankie King, E. C. Franson, Charles A. Grist, B. J. McReynolds, Belle Wright, W. A. Knuth, F. E. Hallman, J. A. ## Outline of 1937-38 Programs Given Third Travel Section

Programs in store for Ebell Third Travel section during the new club year opening in October, were outlined by Mrs. Sam W. Nau Friday afternoon during the group's luncheon meeting in the clubhouse. "The Eastern Orient" will be next year's study theme. In addition to regular meetings the fourth Friday of each month, will come an October evening program at which Mrs. C. P. Boyer will tell of her recent travels around the world, it was announced.

During a short business meeting, Mrs. S. A. Moore was re-elected leader of the section. Other officers named were Mrs. M. M. Holmes, assistant leader, Mrs. G. H. Jeffrey, secretary-treasurer, Miss Ida Nay, press chairman.

Forty-three members were present for the latest meeting, which was followed by a lecture on Russia, with William M. Berke of Los Angeles as speaker. He was introduced by Mrs. Nau.

Other events of the afternoon were preceded by the serving of luncheon at tables decorated with sweet peas. Hostesses were Mesdames A. Thorndike, W. W. Kaye, M. M. Holmes, M. C. Williams, F. R. Trawick, A. M. Gardner, Albert Bowen, C. H. Jeffrey, Herbert Krahling, S. A. Moore, C. A. Westgate and the Misses Blanche Collins and Ida Nay.

The section's next meeting will be a luncheon Friday, June 25 in Hotel Laguna.

Why CLYDE BEATTY Had to LET HIS WIFE go in the LION CAGE

The famed jungle cat trainer held out for a long time, but his bride won the argument, and she now has an animal act of her own in hubby's new circus

Harriet Beatty, former aerialist who married a wild animal trainer and persuaded him to make a trainer out of her.

By Helen Welshimer

WHEN a Royal Bengal tiger and a black mane lion ride side by side on an elephant's back, in one of the most sensational acts in circus history, notice that it is a mite of a girl, locked up in their steel cage with them, who puts them through their paces.

Lions, tigers and elephants hate one another. You sense the enmity above the glitter of the spangled lights, the odor of the sawdust, the tempo of the band.

"That act is worthy of the courage and showmanship of a Beatty!" undoubtedly you will comment if you ever have seen the world famous animal trainer in action.

You will be right. Clyde Beatty has a hand in the super-trick. For the last two years Clyde Beatty has been taking time off from the training of the 40 tigers and lions in his own act, to do a bit of special private coaching.

He held out against it for a long time. The girl kept at him until he yielded. The mite of a woman in the terrifying cage is Clyde Beatty's wife, making her debut in an act that brings down the galleries. She is golden-haired, blue-eyed, five feet three inches tall and weighs 104 pounds.

It was back in 1935 that Mrs. Beatty first began to handle the jungle cats under her husband's direction, in the Cole Brothers-Clyde Beatty Circus, of which the noted animal trainer is part owner. She had been a circus aerialist before her marriage a year before. Beatty had coaxed her to give up her profession because he thought that kind of work was "too dangerous."

At first Mrs. Beatty just went along with the show. She was afraid of the wild animals and wished she weren't. Then a lion cub was born and it fell to Mrs. Beatty to bring it up on a bottle. She got over her fear. She suggested to her husband that she would like to become an animal trainer.

However, the fearless master of the jungle cats had no sympathy with such talk. The steel arena was no place for a woman, he insisted. She argued.

And she won. Beatty began to let her enter the cage with him. She was an apt pupil. He was amazed. One day he went out of the cage, leaving her alone for a minute while he watched from the side. When she realized that it was up to her to come through, without help, she had a terrifying moment but she didn't falter. She was scared to death—but she loved it.

That was two years ago. Now, with the moving of the 1937 show from the New York Hippodrome to Chicago and other points, Mrs. Beatty's act becomes a special circus novelty.

Beatty keeps an eye on his wife while she works.

"He trained the animals for me and it's my duty to take care of them when my stunt comes," his wife says. "He watches me during my 30-minute rehearsal period every morning and throughout my performances. Now and then he has to come to my rescue and I'm certainly glad he's around."

"There was the day I got in the way of a tiger which was rolling a barrel. He kept pushing me against the wall. Then he sprang. But not at me. He had been watching a lion in front of him. He brushed me as he passed."

"One day I saw a lion kill a tiger in my husband's act, and I'll admit that for several days I hated to hear the overture for my act."

LIONS and tigers are quite apt to stage a killing at any time. Ever since Beatty began to mix the two cats back in 1926, because he had been told that the one-species, one-sex acts were losing their appeal, he has had to expect fights.

He has lost 18 tigers and two lions in such battles. Since a replacement costs $500 and he puts a value of from $5000 upon a cat he himself has trained, his losses have been terrific.

When Mrs. Beatty became an animal trainer's wife she had to cure herself of the habit of screaming.

"At first I just stood by the cage all the time Clyde was in it and screamed," she remembers. "Noise startles animals, as it happens, and when you train animals you understand the motives back of their movements sufficiently to know when noise is needed to divert the oncoming cat. However, I screamed from plain fear at first. All trainers crack the whip and shoot blank cartridges to frighten animals. Bullets are useless. All a cat can feel is a burning sensation."

Clyde Beatty holds a blank-loaded pistol and a steel-bolted chair in his left hand, during his act, and carries a whip in his right. The whiplash, which cuts the air like a small crack of thunder, and the barking of the pistol are only part of the trick of keeping the animals in place, Mrs. Beatty learned.

For instance, take her husband's act in which he pedestals 25 lions and lionesses, and 15 tigers and tigresses, in the steel cage which is 32 feet in diameter, with a web of netting protecting the top.

Every movement of the trainer's body must convey a message to the animal. A cue, in briefer phraseology. A trainer must keep the animals informed that he is master of the arena.

Consider the Beatty act for a minute. A lion sits with its paws upraised, begging like a dog. A tiger is made to whirl around and around and around. The animals are taught how to feint and make sham attacks. It's splendid showmanship, and tremendously dangerous considering that lions hate tigers, and tigers despise lions, and neither have much love for human beings.

All of this work is known as "advanced trickology."

Mrs. Beatty uses a tiger named Pimba, an African lion named Simba, and an elephant named Jobba for her act. Pimba, who is 20 months old, tips the scales at 400 pounds, and Simba weighs nearly 500 pounds. Mrs. Beatty has her cats go through some trickery of their own, arranged by her husband.

But to get back to the Beatty romance and the advancement of the young animal trainer—pital and it was summer when he returned to the circus, where he met Miss Evansisky.

Miss Evansisky, now Mrs. Beatty, is the Chicago-born daughter of Russian parents, but she was reared in Canada. Although no one in her family ever had been identified with the circus she grew up with a determination to join one. In 1930, when a Chicago circus advertised for girls to pose for a feature, she applied and received a job. Later she worked wild horses and eventually became an aerialist.

"Clyde and I began to see a lot of each other," Mrs. Beatty reminisces. "We both like to fish and are fond of ball games. It was three years, though, before we were married."

Beatty, meantime, although his animal act was the most sensational in the world, and his name a circus drawing card, never had exceeded a $100-a-week salary mark. The Ringling circus was paying him this amount in 1935. This circus, which had bought up all its competitors, had been forced to turn over most of its assets to New York bankers during the depression when it couldn't meet the interest on a note of $1,700,000.

Therefore, in 1935, he and two other Ringling men pooled their capital and organized a

FORTY THOUSAND DOLLARS in much money to pay for the risks that he runs several times a day.

Once his arm was chewed by a tigress. Another time a leopard ripped open his forehead. Then there was that experience at the training camp at Peru, Ind., in 1932 when a huge Nubian lion named Nero suddenly turned, leaped over the trainer and bit him. Two lions, which hadn't left the cage as yet—rehearsal was just over—joined Nero.

Before the famous animal man recovered from this experience his fever reached 105 degrees. A laboratory analysis of specimens of Beatty's blood showed that he had acquired a germ that belongs to the Pasteurella group, a group which attacks animals. Only 14 human beings, including Beatty, ever had had the germ, research revealed.

Immediate attempts to create a combative serum were started. It was doubtful if the one applied to animals would work on a human being. Meantime, Dr. Stephen D. Maseof, the physician who takes care of the circus people at their winter headquarters, kept on searching for a pus pocket. He found it, released the poison, and Beatty grew better without the serum. The medicine was perfected and is ready in case another cat bites the Beattys or anyone else.

This accident required 10 strenuous weeks of suffering before recovery was completed.

Mr. and Mrs. Beatty, apart from the circus excitement, live a quiet life. When they are at their winter training headquarters, now located at Rochester, Ind., they rent an apartment. Hotels take care of them during long city engagements. They are allotted half a Pullman coach when the circus is traveling.

"We sleep about nine hours a night," Mrs. Beatty explains. "Our big meal is a dinner that we eat at 5 o'clock, several hours before the animal acts go on. About midnight we have a light supper. I like to cook and my husband is fond of eating. He has a huge appetite but he works so hard in the cage that there is no danger that he will accumulate weight. Soup and steaks are his favorite foods."

Clyde Beatty's sensational rise in the animal world is well known to most small boys who have seen, or wanted to see, the circus come unload. As a child on his father's farm at Chillicothe, O., Beatty coaxed his mother to take him to the Cincinnati zoo every time the family went to town. For recreation at home he trained the domestic animals in the barn lot.

At 16 he ran away to join a circus, but his father brought him home and made him complete his high school course. At 18 he ran away again. This time he was allowed to stay.

At first he was put to work cleaning out animal cages. He showed such skill with the animals that he was permitted to work with them and before long was putting lions, bears and leopards together. Then he began the famous lion-tiger combination. At 25 he was a radiant star in the circus world.

Mr. and Mrs. Beatty with a pair of lion cubs.

THE Beatty romance got off to an unpromising start. It was back in the spring of 1931, while the Hagenback-Wallace circus, with which Clyde Beatty was then affiliated, was at Komo, Ind. One day as Beatty was rehearsing his cats, Harriet Evansisky, a newcomer to the show, sat watching. She had not seen the animal trainer before, either in his act or off the set.

Suddenly a tiger sprang at him and tore him. He spent a long convalescence in the hospital.

The other two men were Jess Adkins, former manager of Hagenback-Wallace, and Jack Terrell, who had occupied the same position with Sells-Floto. Beatty had some money saved from his book royalties on "The Big Cage," and from the two movies which he had made, "The Big Cage," and "The Lost Jungle."

Last year, the report goes, the show cleared $250,000, of which $40,000 was Beatty's share.

WHENEVER the old grandpappy Indians of the Southwest squat together and powwow nowadays, they still speak with awe about the white man's telegraph as used in the 1880's. Palefaces, it seems, could tap on a long wire and send messages better than the red men could with signal smokes or tom-toms.

Just imagine the effrontery, therefore, of Gladwell Richardson, up near the Hopi and Navajo reservations. He figured to put some of the old warriors on a national radio hook-up.

Gladwell is so popular among both reds and whites that they have all nicknamed him "Tony." They trust him with anything; they respect his judgment, and constantly seek his advice.

But the red folk are about to excommunicate him, or something, because of this outlandish radio business. The palefaces of three entire counties are chuckling in unholy glee.

You realize, of course, that the warriors in paint and feathers never did understand that telegraph thing, not to mention radio.

When old Geronimo, fiercest of the wild Apache Indians, finally surrendered half a century ago, Dan Williamson, a young telegraph operator, clicked out that headline news to an anxious world. Dan is still living in Globe, Ariz. And every week, even now, bronzed ladies and gentlemen of high cheekbones come to his office or home to have the miracle explained to them again, to discuss that astounding telegraph with its wires and keys.

Kiowa Indian ceremonial dancers in their traditional outfits. . . . At right, "Tony" Richardson, who tried unavailingly to get them on the air.

Still bewildered by the telegraph and the white man's "fire horse," Uncle Sam's Indians can't fathom the mysteries of the microphone—and to stage their big powwow before it—humph!

Devil dancers of the southwest, in full regalia. The Indians will tolerate the white man's presence at their ceremonies—but they don't really welcome it.

start chanting and dancing about 4 p. m. and still be at it, without interruption, when the next sun rises. Then they will halt for an hour of feasting and begin performing again. That's exactly what happens at Flagstaff.

Last year, a hundred or so young Reds locked arms to form a circle in the 30-acre clearing there just after supper. Some drummers in the center began pounding OOM-oom-oom-oom, OOM-oom-oom on their tom-toms, and the others began to chant and step.

By midnight that circle was crowded right back to the trees. Great fires were inside it. More drummers were oom-ooming. Faces were savage, painted, fiery, fierce. Time seemed to have turned back. Civilization was nonexistent. The tremendous volume of the singing and chanting made religious thunder.

Some of that can of course be put on the radio, but the grandeur of that is in the setting, the immensity of it, the star canopy, the cathedral pines, and the shadows that dance in ghostly chorus with the men. What the white enthusiasts wanted was a dozen or so of the special ceremonial dancers to do their stuff by the microphone—and occasionally for one of them to step up in solo. No sale.

You can visit Navajo-land and see the Fire Dance. You can drop in on the Apaches and see their Devil Dance. You can even pull some wires and many miles of sand trail and get up into the sky city of Walpi, to see the famous Hopi Snake Dance. But you'd better sit or stand respectfully, if not reverently.

You'd better not jerk out a camera and try clicking it. Some Red policeman—fully backed by your own Uncle Sam—will snatch the camera and films, break them over a rock, and drop them 800 feet straight down into a heap of similar rubbish. It matters not at all if the equipment cost you $300 and was imported from Germany.

The Indian has no urge to publicize his ceremonial. He tolerates, rather than welcomes, you in person. He thinks your radio business is plain paleface hokey. If he ever goes on the air with genuine, heart-felt savageland music, it won't be because he understands, but because some greatly trusted white friend, such as Tony Richardson, has convinced him that it is all right.

understood about radio. Yes indeed, they could easily get some of the younger, more "educated" Indians to do a song or two in front of a microphone; one Navajo lad, Wavo-begay, does a swell tap dance. And have you heard Nancy Smith (ex-Honey Bee Girl) sing "Minnie the Mocher"?

TONY didn't want that. He knew the radio chain didn't, either.

He wanted the real stuff—the honest back-to-the-beginning Indian lore as passed on verbally for hundreds and hundreds of years, the enchanting ceremonial music that can still be heard around isolated campfires and in kivas on the ancient pueblos. Tony knew. He had been there in person.

"But the most of the adult Indians never heard of a radio," the school principals, hired by Uncle Sam, explained. "If by chance they have heard one playing in a white home or an automobile, it is just another music-in-a-box, a phonograph, to their minds.

"The phonograph itself is miracle enough for them. They are suspicious of it, many are superstitious and fearful.

"The telephone is almost an insult to many of them, although they have come to tolerate that, just as we tolerate the Hopis dancing naked with live rattlesnakes held in their hands and mouths. They still marvel at the white man's telegraph, and at the fire horse that he rides in. How can you expect them to understand the radio?"

Mr. Richardson had no answer to that.

He is an intelligent white man. He decided that this business of broadcasting the gigantic Indian Powwow from Flagstaff will have to be approached gradually, very gradually. Every white man, woman, and child in America would break a leg getting to the studio, if either NBC or CBS asked them to sing into a microphone, but the Redskin Americans think the whole business is, in effect, "nerfs."

This doesn't mean that Indians have never broadcast.

They have. But they have been tricked into it, paid outrageously, or otherwise coerced. And not all the American Indians are as isolated at those in northern Arizona. The Flagstaff Powwow is set for July 3, 4 and 5; maybe—just maybe—it will be on the air.

ANOTHER point back of all the maneuvering is that the Indians don't give a hang about "entertaining" white people, or enlightening them either. All they ask is to be let alone, and when let alone they are likely to "heap," but the point is clear.)

"It's all right, Chief—here, have another cigar, and some more of these delicious canned peaches—we just want you to get some of your people to sing for 15 minutes there in front of the microphone—that little black box on a stick. See?"

"HUMPH!" remarked Chief Buffalo-With-Great-Horns, and when Chief Buffalo says humph, you can't misunderstand him. He took another cigar, and nearly another can of the food he loves best.

"Snothing to it, Chief," Tony went on, blandly. "Just one of the same religious chants you been doing for us. You know, that corn planing song, where you thank the gods for rain, and pray for more. Or maybe the one with the gourd rattles—say, that'd add some swell sound effects! Knock 'em dead in the penthouses of New York and Chicago. Real, authentic—"

"Humph!" said Chief Buffalo, and the glare from his eyes (which would have meant torture over live coals, 50 years ago) voiced a silent double-humph. Tony Richardson swallowed, and passed the canned peaches again.

Chief Buffalo ended that initial conference with a dignity which would have shamed a Supreme Court justice. And left Tony Richardson squirming without a single alibi.

Tony, however, comes from pioneer stock himself, so he went on fighting. He tackled the problem this time through one of the reservation schools. There, in all truth, the teachers

Indian women and children lining the rail during one of the southwest's powwows.

Dan is gracious about it. He even tries to demonstrate the ultra-modern telephone, where actual voices come over the wire. But the Indians listen and grin a little. They figure there's some trick to it; good old Dan, always trying to have fun with his Indian friends. Dan just smiles benevolently, wise in his 70-odd years.

Tony Richardson, though, is a much younger man. He is barely over 30. Tony has been to Chicago, New York, Los Angeles. He understands such cryptic hieroglyphics as NBC and CBS. He knows what a kilowatt is, and a kilocycle. He knows that wires on a pole are a nuisance nowadays. More important, Tony knows a lot about that great American institution—ballyhoo.

THE Indians of Arizona (which has more red men than any other state) about 1930 started having an annual get-together at the white village, Flagstaff, which is nearest to the most reservations.

At first, four or five hundred came. Then, by chance, the white citizens discovered its interest and provided free barbecue for them. That news spread, and last July 7000 red men descended on the little mountain town!

This year, in July, 10 or 12 thousand are anticipated, which will be the biggest Indian peacetime powwow in the history of the nation.

"It keeps gaining!"

DRIVE CAREFULLY - SAVE A LIFE -

LEST WE FORGET!

"Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet, Lest we forget,—lest we forget."

Penned years ago by an English poet and author, Kipling's majestic "Recessional" speaks the ideal of America's Memorial Day fully and completely.

Memorial Day—a day of remembrance! Lord God of Hosts be with us yet—lest we forget!

How can we forget our heroes of the Civil War, the Spanish-American War and the World War?

How can we forget the sacrifices of their most precious possession—their lives—that the Union might be preserved and that we might live in peace?

But we do forget!

We allow petty prejudices, private hates and selfishness; factional strife and a groping for personal power and glory to, sometimes, set aside the ideal for which these heroes have died.

America's heroic dead should be an inspiration to every red-blooded American. An inspiration to cast aside selfishness and to carry on the fight for true American freedom—the American freedom for which our forefathers died.

Those men who died in the battle of Shiloh and on the field at Antietam died that the Union might be preserved. Their grandsons, who died in Flanders fields, died with the promise that their sacrifice would guarantee a permanent peace and that there should be no more war.

Today the nation is paying tribute to its heroic dead. Flags are at half mast and orators sound the call of patriotism. It is a solemn day and a day of memories—but should it end today?

What shall we do the other 364 days?

Would it not be a tribute to remember, every day of the year, that this beloved land was drenched with the blood of our heroic dead—that the sacrifice of their lives made it possible for America to be the land that it is today?

Remembering this then let us bare our heads and, reverently, pray—

"Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet, Lest we forget,—lest we forget."

NO MORE LARGE GIFTS

The passing of John D. Rockefeller brings to mind the eventual results of our present policy of making it impossible for anybody to accumulate wealth as Rockefeller did. The present tax laws, it is generally agreed, are for the purpose of preventing large wealth accumulations in anyone's hands.

It is generally conceded that Rockefeller attempted to distribute his gifts in a manner not to purchase popularity but for purposes the public could not be induced to support. In other words, somewhat as Bernard Shaw said in his tract, "Socialism for Millionaires," that a millionaire should never give a community anything that it could possibly be induced to support voluntarily. The great detriment to society in not allowing any individual with foresight to accumulate large wealth, is that the public as a whole will be the final judge as to what is humanitarian, what is real science, what is real education. They will only contribute and support what the voting majority believes is important and the voting majority has never been known for its foresight. The voting majority always plays politics, always thinks for the present and never for the future.

For this reason, it will be impossible to endow great educational institutions to make scientific study. The public will be the judge and it will be a political football, a popularity contest and not a movement to add to the general welfare, over a long period of years.

In the long run, this will be very detrimental to society—to have our educational institutions, our laboratories, our scientific research under the complete control of the voting majority of the politicians.

This is one of the great objections to any tax plan that prevents large accumulation of wealth because education can then and only then be a monopoly of the voting majority. There then can be no difference of opinion as to what is important with men putting their heart, soul and lives in their beliefs.

THE "CRY ROOM"

A feature that should meet with the loud acclaim of movie fans has been introduced in a Monticello, Ill., theater.

It is a glass-covered "cry room," equipped with loud speakers. In it mothers may enjoy pictures, and let the rest of the audience enjoy them, too, while their babies ring the welkin with lusty yells.

While it is an innovation that other movie-goers throughout the country will await eagerly, it is wondered if such noise proof rooms cannot be made even more desirable.

Even the most ardent of baby lovers dislikes having his enjoyment of a film marred by a sudden infantile yowl from nearby. But how much more invidious than these interruptions are the monotonous and nerve wracking sounds that arise from the munching of popcorn and peanuts, the cracking of chewing gum, the cooing of the love-smitten couple in front, or the description of film action being supplied by the mother just behind.

What a boon if all these sound effects could be confined to the "cry room."

FARM LEGISLATION

It seems that the proposed federal farm legislation would impose a 66 per cent fine of the current price for over-production of farm produce.

We are glad to note that several of the national farm organizations, including the National Grange, are opposed to this kind of legislation. They evidently have foresight enough to see where this kind of legislation eventually would lead to. The head of the legislative committee of the Grange is to be congratulated on its stand in this case.

CIRCULATING SOME MONEY

Forbes' article, in commenting on Henry Ford, says:

"One day this month Ford paid 43 million dollars to 6943 other employers, employing several million workers, for materials. The daily average put into Ford pay envelopes now is $840,000. Last month Ford sent more than 72 millions in checks to 45 states for materials. In the first three months of this year 271 millions was paid for materials and $70,500,000 in wages.

Better Jobs FOR ALL

—By R. C. HOILES

Selective Education
If there were some way for the public to develop and educate those who would use their talent for the common good and refuse to stimulate and educate those who use their training to promote their personal power, it would be a wonderful step in human progress.

But the rain falls on the just and the unjust and the tyrant who becomes trained is a detriment to society rather than a benefit. Public educational institutions, of course, have no way of differentiating between students; private educational institutions can attempt to select those whose training and education will be beneficial and reject those who will not.

CCC Camps

Without analyzing the eventual results, people have been carried away with the blessings of the CCC camps.

It was proposed by the President to make this a permanent institution at a cost of about $350,000,000 a year.

CCC camps do not make it possible to add to the wages of all workers. They do not produce as much as they consume and what they consume more than they produce must come from what private workers produce. Both the compensation of private workers, and of those on the dole, and of pensions and of government workers who consume more than they produce, all comes from the same source—production. And when any group consumes more than it produces, those who are producing must of necessity share and consume less than what they produce.

On the subject of work relief, Congressman Gray, Democrat of Pennsylvania, in opposing the permanency of the CCC, made a general assault on the whole federal relief business. He said:

"At previous times I have tried to do something about this ridiculous and sorry phase of New Dealism. I introduced a bill that would prohibit by fine or imprisonment any federal government official who required enrollment on the relief as a condition precedent to employment on public-financed work. It got nowhere, possibly because there is political method in this particular form of madness. The system is vicious; it is abominable; it is un-American; it bears down on and breaks up the morale of our people. It deprives and penalizes the industrious and thrifty. It favors, approves, commends, encourages and pays thriftlessness, laziness and extravagance."

Mr. Gray has well stated the case. We are encouraging thriftlessness and discouraging thrift—something we have been preaching in season and out of season.

Regulating Wages

It is now proposed that congress regulate wages. The Constitution gave congress the right to coin money and regulate the value thereof. Its attempt to regulate the value of money has probably caused as much suffering and misery as anything else in the United States. Note the change in the purchasing power of money every few years! This is due entirely to the mismanagement of congress, to its attempt to regulate the value of money. Something the framers of the Constitution never intended.

Now congress proposes to regulate the value of wages. They will make as dismal a failure of this as they did in regulating the value of money. They have no more ability to regulate the value of money and the wages than they have to regulate the level of the Pacific ocean. They will make as dismal a failure of one as the other and the workers must suffer because of this wishful thinking on the part of congress.

Free enterprise means that we have a natural and free exchange; regulation means despotism—it means every so often breaking out from the tyranny, it means rapid advances and rapid decreases. Regulating wages means millions of people will be out of work and those who are working will get less. It has been tried time and again in ancient history and always failed.

What Other Editors Say

WHAT OF THE FARMERS?

Oakland Tribune

With various reports on crops, returns of dust storms in the "bowls" section, and floods in others, our agricultural programs are confronted with problems similar to those of the past two or three years. Experience may have told us to expect visitations of climate, but the theoretical scheme would ignore them.

Into Chicago today is pouring Argentine corn to fill a demand which our corn belt used to supply. The South reports that sales of raw cotton to other countries have dropped from nine million bales in 1926 to 5,642,000 bales in 1936. That is a loss of more than 450 million dollars a year to 20 million persons dependent upon cotton.

Carry on the story and we find that grains and grain products exported in 1926 were valued at $855,687,000, and in 1936, at $29,568,000. Wheat exports dropped from $261,735,000 to $1,851,000.

We know today that American agriculture is losing its markets in other countries and that the produce of those other lands is coming here in increased quantities. While this is going on we prepare to curtail our crops, insure our farm sales, and fix prices. Two theories are in violent conflict. One would have us resign our position as a producer and it is one which is bestowing large profits upon other countries.

The Detroit Free Press, the other day, put an argument in a question: "The Wallaces not only want to tax consumers in order to pay farmers for not growing crops, but they also want $50,000,000 spent to rehabilitate tenant farmers thrown out of employment because of crop curtailment!"

"Would it not be more sensible to remove the restrictions which have been hampering the farmers and destroying their markets, abroad and at home, and enable them to support themselves, as their fathers did?"

A Time For Rededication

Little Benny's Note Book

BY LEE PAPE

Mr. Hammer was at our house for dinner yesterday, being pop's boss and very important, and we was in the living room waiting to go down to the dining room and Mr. Hammer started to ask me questions, saying, Well Benny, have you made the big decision about your future? Do you think you'll be a professional man or do you prefer to be a business man? he said.

O, I don't know, I guess maybe I'll be an airplane pilot, I said, and Mr. Hammer said, Well if you are, be careful, especially in wartime. But I understand you have a good deal of literary ability, so perhaps you'd like to be an author, he said.

O, I don't know, I've wrote one book already, and I guess that's enough, I said, and Mr. Hammer said, Well, it frequently is, but you surprise me, I had no idea you'd written a book, your father never told me.

It's news to me, too, and I fear it was news to Benny himself till just a moment ago, pop said.

Meaning I was just making it up, and I said, No sir, it's a real book and I wrote it, and it's rite there in the bookcase with the others. Come come, that's a bit thick, pop said, and ma said, Why Benny, how can you say such a thing with a straight face, what will Mr. Hammer think?

Well hey, I'll show it to you, I said. Morning the book, and I went over to the bookcase and took it out, saying, Here it is, I found it in my desk drawer the other day and I realized I had wrote it so I brawt it down and put it in the bookcase.

Being a little thin red book called Pocket Diary for 1935, having a space for every day in the year and there was writing in my writing in nearly every space, saying, I don't know, I guess maybe I'll be an airplane pilot, as Went to Pops house, or Rain today, or Late for school, or Cousin Artie came over, or Had my hair cut, and just then the dinner bell rang for supper, being stuff chicken in honor of Mr. Hammer.

A SURREJOINDER

Editor Register: The latest effusion of the elusive W. H. Crocker, a disciple of tomfoolery, informs, in airy persiflage, that his name is not in Who's Who; but omits the facts that his name does not appear in the Orange County directory, or on the list of the County's registered voters.

In his earlier serio-comic letter, Mr. Crocker applied six paragraphs to purely personal piffle, and two to discussion of inequities of the income tax and schedules. Replying, I devoted 14 paragraphs to earnest discussion, and four to personal banter. But every paragraph of Mr. Crocker's last outpouring is devoted primarily to nonsense, although in four paragraphs are glimmers of concealed suggestions or accusations. He thus fulfills his promise to act as a "docus"; for he has attempted by artifice to divert the discussion from public questions to trivialities.

First, Mr. Crocker makes a veiled disparaging reference to "W. P. A. projects." It is done in light vein, possibly with suspicion that anyone who proposes that the W. P. A. should be discontinued, while only eight or nine millions of the hosts deprived of employment by the Old Deal have been returned to regular work by the New Deal, needs a sense of and display of humor to sustain his spirit.

No doubt, Mr. Crocker realizes there exist somewhere in the financial, industrial and commercial life of America what are known as "predatory" interests; and that the term is synonymous with pillaging, plundering, rapacity.

There are also "predatory" birds and animals. For instance, crows watch the farmer plant corn, and after it sprouts, pull it up and eat it to satiety; and later ravage the maturing crop. They also prey upon more docile and useful birds, as well as eat their eggs. Likewise wolves prey upon sheep, lambs, calves and deer.

When a crow or a wolf becomes wounded, crippled or disabled, however, its fellows gather around it, not to succor or to save, but to attack, tear asunder and destroy.

(1) Has Mr. Crocker ever discovered traits of any predatory humans, birds or animals which suggest to him that they would projects, even after their predatory tactics reduced their fellows to distress?

Mr. Crocker states that members of his clan followed a person bearing my name to Nicaragua on a filibustering escapade in '49. My knowledge of filibustering expeditions is probably not as extensive as Mr. Crocker's, but from a general knowledge of history and of physical conditions in Central America during the middle of the last century I suspect that no such expedition then occurred, and that Mr. Crocker is romancing.

Coincidentally, as I recall, a man to whom I am related did command more recently, expeditions in Nicaragua and other parts of Central America, and West Indies, followed by awarding of Congressional medals. He was Smedley D. Butler, and the expeditionists were U. S. marines. Major-General Butler has since intimated that a result, if not the ulterior purpose—to state it mildly—of subjecting the marines to the dangers of death from armed guerrilla bands and the ravages of yellow fever, was to protect private investments and profits. Apparently there operated what is called "invisible government."

(2) Does Mr. Crocker doubt that "practical" gentlemen interested in exploiting Nicaragua are now "patriotically" opposed to P. W. A. projects and income taxes?

In answer to my intimation that perhaps during the darkest days of the Old Deal Mr. Crocker had no net income to report, he says: "The time to repair the roof is in fair weather"; from which it may be inferred that mere panics are "duck soup" to Mr. Crocker.

The steel, copper, automobile and lumber industries presumably have engaged in their management competent and practical business executives. When the depression came, they all had reserves, laid by "in fair weather"; yet each went into the red many millions. No doubt the steel, copper, automobile and lumber executives believed themselves to be—as do Mr. Crocker and some other Old Dealers—as smart as a mountain goat in springtime, and as practical as corn on the cob.

(3) Do you dispute, Mr. Crocker, that these industries which lost millions—under political and economic policies to which you and other Old Dealers were and are very much attached—were supervised by the same executives, who used the same brains, ability, experience and methods they used in making profits?

Mr. Crocker suggests that perhaps he used what others "wasted"—a large order. In the "good old days" billions of feet of lumber were wasted, when our forests were plundered and slaughtered. The same wasteful methods were used in the mines and oil fields.

In 1928-1929, when President Coolidge used to go to the White House pantry and get an apple and cut it in halves, and carefully save one half, there were millions of bushels of apples going to waste in the Wenatchee Valley, Washington.

During the same years, 50,000 tons of peaches went to waste in California, as well as many millions of pounds of grapes. It was reported 600,000 peach trees were destroyed. These represented not a few months' growth, as of wheat and cotton, but several years'.

There were really no surpluses of apples, peaches or grapes over actual needs.

(4) And, Mr. Crocker, do you question that such "waste," together with a far greater "waste," caused by the washing away of priceless billions of tons of rich earth by erosion, when soil conservation could have saved it, is justly chargeable to Old Deal policies, incompetence and neglect?

I am not insensible that it is probable that the name "W. H. Crocker" is assumed; that possibly the Crocker effusions were written by super-patriots, self-appointed and self-constituted to determine with good intentions what facts or opinions the general public is qualified to know and, con-

OUR CHILDREN

BY ANGELO PATRI

THE GANG

In spite of the Declaration of Independence no two children are born equal. In any two, one will lead and the other will follow. One will say how and when and the other will set about the doing of it. The gang and its leader is the logical outgrowth of human need.

The follower looks up to his leader and copies him as closely as he can. When, one afternoon, your child comes home from school as unlike the child who left home that morning as any changeling might be, you can know he has met and accepted a leader. If he is half-way acceptable let it go at that. These attachments are formed to be broken, and one of the best ways to use them for the good of all concerned is to allow them to run their full day. Try to go along with the gang. Only when you discover that the working motive is bad should you interfere.

The gang is likely to be at about the same level of growth, achievement, mental and normal development as the child in your house. It is difficult for a family to accept the notion that their boy is just like the one next door and the one down the street; that he has dirty hands and face at times, that he has no manners to meet a situation on occasions, that he might break a window and thereby bring down the wrath of the corner grocer. But it is true. All little boys and most little girls go through a grubby stage, even the nice little boy in your house. It is nothing to worry about. Just something to accept like chicken pox and mumps.

Once a boy has joined up with his gang he yields to the gang spirit completely. He makes their manners his—their speech, their ways or dress, their standards, all are his. Anything that might cast reflections upon the gang's standards is a call to arms. Whatever the gang does is right and it takes a lot of doing to make him see anything else. Unless there is something dangerous in what the gang stands for and what it does, leave it alone to work out its terms.

The best way in any case is to keep ahead of the boy's growth and its needs by heading him toward the right sort of gang in the beginning. For that you can't beat the Boy Scout organization. It offers all a boy needs, and one can feel safe in feeling he belongs. What is true of the boys is true of the girls as well. Their gangs are more conservative and stay closer to home and in well-traveled paths of experience. The girls need out-of-home experiences. They need to get out into the air, to learn camp ways, and the cooperation and spirit of common service that the Campfire Girls offer. A girl can have no finer experience in these early years than those she gets in her Campfire years.

It is here that she learns to accept other girls as friends without the usual too personal pickings that girls practice. A girl is a sister if she belongs no matter what sort of house she lives in or the make of her family's car. She belongs because of her membership in this group, and that belonging wipes out all other lines. This is something that girls need more than their democratic, friendly brothers. Girls are likely to be too close a corporation in their acquaintances and friendships. Campfire groups spread friendliness and understanding farther than any social organization seems to do. Introduce the girl to the Campfire group and the boy to the Scouts and you take out insurance against the dangers of a peculiarly dangerous stage of growth.

SIMPLICITY

WASHINGTON, May 31.—The stand of the house against President Roosevelt's spending freedom has been widely misinterpreted. It has been widely misinterpreted. It is the president, an economy move, a Democratic party split and several other things, which it isn't.

To understand congress, you need only to understand human nature. The basis behind most congressional actions will be found in such primitive instincts as self-protection and self-preservation.

The simple reason why those legislators voted to earmark one-third of Mr. R.'s $1,500,000,000 for relief is because they want to be sure to get as much as they can for their home districts.

The house is up for re-election next year. Mr. Roosevelt is not. Neither is the cordially disliked (in congress) spender Harry Hopkins. If Mr. Hopkins has complete freedom in spreading the dough in a congressional campaign year, the manna may not fall where politically oppressed legislators need it. Specifically, the re-election of a legislator from the umpteenth district in Timbuctoo may depend more on whether he was able to get a dam built in trickling creek with federal money than upon his votes in congress.

Naturally, they want to earmark those $300,000,000 for PWA, $55,000,000 for flood control and water conservation construction, and $150,000,000 for highway and grade crossings. They want to get theirs.

The rebels undoubtedly were emboldened to their self-assertiveness by diminishing awe of the White House. Some of them liked the idea of offering an outburst of resentment against the way they have been treated under the new order.

At heart, they are not really so much against the president personally on this issue, but rather against his subordinates. For example, they do not like to see any of these independent bureau chiefs downtown making over $10,000 a year, because this is all they make. They cut CCC Director Fechner from $12,000 a few weeks before they cut Mr. Hopkins.

All in all, it shows congressmen are beginning to look out for their own skins. They realize the Roosevelt coat tails may not be sufficiently strong to provide another free ride to re-election.

In turn, this means a further step toward the return of normal relations between the executive and legislative branches of government.

Note—House Floor Leader Rayburn distinguished himself in handling the rebels with tact. His nickname now has become "Shepherd" Rayburn, or "Shep" for short, because of the common sense, kindness and concern he exhibited for his wandering flock. This alone caused delay of final action until Tuesday.

UNWILLING TACITURNITY
They said he would never do it, but Senate Judiciary Chairman Henry Ashurst has not given the newspapers one of his delectable interviews on the righteousness of court packing for ten days (or rather had not when this column went to press). The secret is he is doing it on a bet.

A friend of his downtown bet the senator he could not avoid comment for sixty days. An exemption was granted, allowing him to make speeches on the floor but no newspaper comments.

Bookmakers are offering 10 to 1 that the widely liked senator will not last out the sixty days.

FASCISM?
Pharaoh Henry Wallace, the agricultural secretary, does not like to have anyone suggest that his strong agricultural control methods were taken from Italy, Germany or Russia. It is all right to say he took them from Egypt (under a king) or China (under war lord economy), but not from dictators.

"I think that nothing like this," he said to a house committee, "has been tried in any other country, although the holding of surpluses has been tried."

Asked directly if European nations (no names mentioned) did not have similar control features, he replied: "Not like this."

With such cautious language, Mr. Wallace kept himself accurate, but he neglected to add that Germany, Italy and Russia have all invoked control features, but "not like" benefit payments, ever-normal granary, control of production or marketing if necessary through penalty taxes, etc., which are all rolled into this one pending bill. The essential difference, however, is that the dictators do it with a mailed fist, while Mr. Wallace's has covered his hand with a Democratic glove containing a honeyed lout.

Mr. Wallace has developed into the best politician of the new order.
